ourteenth Day Finds Rescuers And Collins Apart

orkmen Still Sinking Shaft in Hope of Reaching Kentucky Cave Explorer—Meanwhile Stranger Appears in Kansas and Says He Is Collins—Mystery Still Unsolved.

y Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cave City, Ky., Feb. 12.—Sand ave will give its answer in the early awn of next Sunday.

Sixty hours from this morning at 9 'clock the shaft through which Floyd ollins, imprisoned cave explorer, ill be brought out "dead or alive" ill reach the level where side-drifting actually to locate his body will egin. Then it will be a matter only f hours.

This was the information conveyed oday in an official communique issued over the name of H. T. Carmichael, general supervisor of operations at the pit.

An official bulletin issued at 9 o'clock this morning, placed the depth of the shaft at 49 feet.

"Material being encountered at that depth," the bulletin said, "is the same type of clay, sand and miscellaneous rock."

The shaft bottom, it said, showed no change. The thirteenth section of timbering, 13 feet to the section, was completed at 5 a. m. and digging was resumed.

Whether Collins be alive or dead, whether he lies within reaching space, or many feet below, the men digging to him were, on this fourteenth day of the incomparable drama, still unconquered. Their motto remained the same—"Go get Collins."

Optimism has tinged every action of those in authority. Whether it is their effort to maintain the morale of the men wallowing in the greasy, slippery, sticky mud of the shaft with cheer so that they will get their man out, or whether conditions warrant optimism, cannot be determined.

The military court of inquiry, with Brigadier-General H. H. Denhart, lieutenant governor of Kentucky, president, began its third day of examination of witnesses so that a record might be compiled of the efforts of the state of Kentucky to save one life.

One of the first witnesses to appear was Roy Hyde, the last person to hold verbal communication with the entrapped Collins. He told of crawling to the cave-in and of calling to Floyd, and Floyd's answer was only an indistinct moan.

Stranger Says He Is Collins.

Haddam, Kans., Feb. 12.—This little town in northern Kansas waited today with unusual interest for definite information from Cave City as to the identity of a man who arrived here last night and told local authorities he is Floyd Collins.

Mayor Shearburn of Haddam said this morning he expects definite word from Lieutenant Governor H. H. Denhart today.

The supposed Collins arrived in Haddam late Wednesday afternoon and was amazed when he heard the story of a man, bearing his alleged name, being imprisoned in a Kentucky sand stone catacomb.

"I'm going to hold him until he's identified," declared Shearburn today, "and if he's trying to put something over on us I'll see he gets the full penalty of the law."

Ban Socialists From Third Party

Labor Organizations, Especially of Railroad Men, and Organized Farmers Opposed to Including Them in New Party—LaFollette Followers Clash.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 12.—A bitter fight has broken out among the followers of Senator LaFollette in their efforts to establish a permanent third party, it was learned today.

The clash, which has waged behind the scenes for weeks, will be settled on the floor of the convention of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, in Chicago a week from Saturday.

Participation of Socialists in the third party movement is the chief point over which the progressives are wrangling. The Socialist party was invited to the conference. It accepted.

Labor organizations, including the powerful railroad brotherhoods, have decided that they will not go along with a new party if the Socialists are given representation. The probabilities, moreover, are that labor groups will not go along under any conditions.

Whether the rail unions even will attend the conference will be determined definitely at a meeting in Chicago next week. Should they be represented it is the belief that they will vigorously oppose launching the proposed party on a permanent basis.

Large farm organizations also have frowned on the party. Farmer organizations who backed LaFollette expect to attend the convention and vote against the third party.

These two groups are the largest in the conference. In their hands rest almost entirely the fate of the new movement. Should they vote adversely, even the most sanguine progressive admits that the third party will be dealt a crippling blow.

Anniversary of Pope's Coronation

50,000 Attend Celebration — Mass Celebrated by Count Locatelli—Orchestra Conducted by Perosi, Noted Priest-Composer.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Feb. 12.—Fifty thousand members of the Catholic faith were admitted to St. Peter's today, where the third anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius was celebrated.

It was the first time the celebration was not held in the Sistine chapel. The public was admitted after high Mass had been celebrated by Cardinal Locatelli, who was the first to receive the red hat from the present pope.

Pope Pius entered St. Peter's from the Sacrament chapel at 10:30 o'clock, the processional taking the same order as when Cardinal Hayes and Mandelein received the red hats.

Special seats were reserved for royalty, including the Princess Josephine of Belgium and Princess Mathilde of Saxony. Prince John of Saxony, Prince George of Bavaria, Prince Godfrey of Austria, as well as for the pope's family.

Perosi, the priest-composer, conducted the coronation orchestra. After Mass had been celebrated, Pope Pius returned to the Vatican in a palanquin.

RAYMOND SICKLER KICKED OUT GLASS IN AUTOMOBILE

Raymond Sickler, 14 years old, of No. 224 Hasbrouck avenue, was arrested by Special Officer Shader at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium on Wednesday evening on a charge of disorderly conduct. The officer also charged Sickler with resisting arrest and in doing so, kicking out the glass in the automobile of the manager of the theater. Sickler's parents were notified to produce the boy before Judge Fowler in children's court today.

Son Observes Lincoln Day

Robert T. Lincoln, 82 Years Old, Lives at Georgetown — National Capital Celebrates Anniversary of Emancipator's Birth.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 12.—Although there was no official holiday and the government, including Congress, functioned as usual, Washington found time today to observe Abraham Lincoln's birthday anniversary.

The capital's recollection of Lincoln centers about his occupancy of the White House in the days before and during the Civil War, for it was here that he rose to his greatness and accomplished the tasks which gave him his place in history.

In a silent, old house in Georgetown, Robert Todd Lincoln, only living son of the president, observed his father's birthday quietly and alone, declining all invitations to public functions and formal anniversary ceremonies. His 82 years bear heavily upon him.

Ceremonies were held at the Willard Hotel, where the tall, gaunt ex-congressman from Illinois stopped before he took the oath of the presidency for the first time; and at the Lincoln Memorial in Potomac Park, where the great Lincoln statue looks out calmly and gravely to the shining dome of the capitol a mile and a half away.

At the Willard observance addresses in eulogy of Lincoln were delivered by Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, Secretary of the Interior Work, Former Governor Lowden, of Illinois; Judge Elbert H. Gary, John Kirby and John Wesley Hill of New York.

Later in the day services, largely attended, were held at the Lincoln Memorial under the auspices of the Sons of Veterans of Maryland and the District of Columbia.

During the day there was a steady stream of visitors at the little brick house in Tenth street where Lincoln died, after he was wounded in Ford's Theater, just across the street. The house is now a museum, containing objects associated with Lincoln's life in Washington. The theater has lately been used as an army recruiting station, but it is now closed.

Thomas A. Edison 78 Years Old

Famous Inventor Spends Birthday in Florida and Talks of Early Experiences There—Passes Up Subject of Greatest Recent Invention.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Fort Myers, Fla., Feb. 12.—"Going on 79."

Thus chuckled Thomas A. Edison, world famous inventor today when seen at his beautiful home on the banks of the placid Caloosahatchee river here and congratulated on his 78th birthday which he observed quietly yesterday with his family and old friends.

Sitting in the warm Florida sun in a comfortable arm chair, Edison gazed out over his estate filled with every sort of tropical plant. He was in a reminiscent mood and scorned scientific subjects.

When questioned as to what he considered the two greatest inventions of the last five years, the famous inventor passed up the subject with: "There have been many. Radio was just coming in five years ago but it was invented before that."

Edison told of coming to Florida for the first time 42 years ago.

"In those days a public square in Jacksonville was filled with orange trees," he said. "I decided to take a trip down the west coast and boarded a little one horse train for Cedar Keys, which ran off the track four times before it arrived there. The rails were simply ribbons of steel on a wooden base.

"From Cedar Keys we took a boat south and I was so struck with the natural beauty of the country surrounding the present city of Fort Myers that we landed at what was then a cattle town of not over forty houses. Shipping cattle to Cuba was a big industry down here then. The climate was perfect and I saw it was a coming place, and as I knew that some day I would be an old man and useless, I decided to buy some land here and erect a shack.

"I liked the tropics. I wanted to be in a jungle, so I planted all those trees you see around here," he continued, waving his hands at the swaying palms and bamboos.

Edison spends most of his time while wintering here fishing with his old crony, Henry Ford, of automobile fame.

Abraham Lincoln's Birthday

Girl Scout Drive Starts Monday

Ulster County Commissioner Launches First Girl Scout Drive for Funds—County Has 16 Troops in 12 Towns, and Movement is Growing.

Mrs. George Halliday, the commissioner of Girl Scouts of Ulster county, together with the Girl Scout Council, have completed plans for the $3,000 drive which starts on February 15th and lasts until March 1st.

The Girl Scouts are out to raise money for the first time in five years, with the exception of a modest campaign by letter that Mrs. Halliday undertook herself last year, bringing in $250. There are sixteen troops in the county, representing 256 girls, in 12 different towns.

Due to the cooperation of Judge Fowler and Louis S. Coe, a quota has been assigned to every town in which there is an interest in Scouting and a general chairman has been appointed to work out the raising of that quota in each community to the best of his, or her ability.

The financial standing of the Girl Scouts in this county has been carried on through the generosity of their commissioner until now. This is not fair to the commissioner nor to the high standards of Scouting.

The Girl Scout movement is spreading throughout the country with great strides. It is a worthy cause loved by the girls and held invaluable by the parents, schools, and teachers.

Through the efforts of the new county director, Miss Eleanor Borton, more troops are being formed and old ones brought to life.

The $3,000 will be used almost entirely to improve and increase in capacity the Ulster County Girl Scout Camp, situated on Mrs. Halliday's estate at Wallkill, to pay the salary of the full-time director, and to broaden the scope and the field of Scouting. If men and women are willing to give their time and energy to this project it is hoped the people of the county, recognizing their responsibility toward the future women of their community, will give their money to the cause of better girlhood and womanhood.

PICTURES OF CATHEDRAL OF ST. JOHN THE DIVINE

This evening at Keeney's Theater as an added attraction, pictures of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York city, will be shown. This great cathedral on Morningside Heights is planned to be the largest and most imposing house of worship in America when completed. It has attracted widespread attention in the past and as the work progresses will attract still more. The pictures will be of great interest to the people of Kingston especially those who have recently contributed toward the fund to complete this great American piece of architecture.

Women On State Committees

Expect Passage of Whitley-Hutchinson Bill at Present Session Giving Women Equal Representation—Passage of 48-Hour Bill Certain.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 12.—Keenly disappointed in not being able to have a member of their own sex elected to the state board of regents, Republican women of the state have doubled their efforts to have the Legislature pass the Whitley-Hutchinson bill which would pave the way for women on state committees.

Considerable opposition to the state committee measure has developed among several Republican county leaders, according to reports reaching the Capitol. William L. Ward of Westchester is said to be one of the leaders, who is most active in opposing the bill.

Under the measure the state committee of both the Republican and Democratic parties would be composed of two members from each Senatorial district. At present, each Assembly district in the state is entitled to one member of the state committee.

Republican leaders in the Legislature have pointed out that the passage of the Whitley-Hutchinson bill will simply "open the door" for women to become members of the state committee. If the measure is passed it will then be up to the leaders and the voters to see that a woman and a man are elected to the committee from each district.

The Republican platform in the last campaign contained a plank urging that women be given equal representation on the state committees and for that reason it is believed the bill will be passed at the present session.

Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler of New York, vice chairman of the Republican state committee, led the women in their fight to have Mrs. Florence G. Pratt of Nassau elected a member of the board of regents. The Republican legislative leaders listened carefully to all the women had to say and then selected Robert W. Hinkle of Queens for the post.

Governor Smith, according to his close friends, believes it would have been a good idea to have elected a woman to the regents board.

The women also are urging the passage of the bill providing for a 48-hour week for women and minors in industry. There is every indication they will be successful in getting this piece of legislation through the present session. The Republican leaders and Governor Smith favor it.

Esopus Flood Danger Passes

Ice Piled Along Upper Esopus Creek But Anxiety is Relieved as Streams Carry Away Melting Snow—Highway Flooded at Accord.

With a steady downpour of rain throughout the night considerable anxiety was felt by property owners along the upper part of the Esopus creek and its tributaries, but this danger has evidently passed.

From the vicinity of Phoenicia, where the highway runs close to the Esopus creek, it was feared an ice jam might form and cause high water which would overflow the lowlands and flood the highway. However, the ice passed out without difficulty and the prospect of an ice jam and flood is practically passed. Below Phoenicia, where the creek runs near the road, there is considerable ice piled up at a point known as "the island," but the creek has made way around the ice and it appears as though all danger of a jam at that point is passed. Ice is piled high along the creek but evidently out of reach of the water.

At some points the creek rose nearly to the road but so far the road has been free from water, and reports from the mountain region indicate that no trouble is anticipated.

The snow in the mountains is rapidly disappearing and thus far the streams have been able to take care of the water which has poured down from the smaller mountain streams.

Accord Highway Flooded.

It was stated by the driver of Van Kleeck's autobus who came from Ellenville this morning on a regular trip that the ice was going out of the Rondout creek and the stream was very high and raising, the water being over the highway at Accord.

Storm Follows Fog.

The heavy fog that has enveloped the city and vicinity since late Monday afternoon together with the intermittent rain fall of the past few days, was followed by snow that started falling at noon today. Throughout the early morning hours rain fell and shortly after 11 o'clock the rain turned to hail and sleet. As the thermometer continued to drop the hail storm turned to snow.

Navigating the Rondout Creek

Lyman Perrine Resumes Ferry Service Between Rondout and Sleightsburgh—Continued Rain, Fog and Mild Weather Wasting Ice Fields.

Wednesday marked the resumption of navigation on the Rondout creek, but owing to the strong current that ran this morning navigation came to a sudden halt. The first boat to resume navigation was the ferry scow operated by Lyman Perrine between Rondout and Sleightsburgh. Mr. Perrine was busy Wednesday cutting a channel through the ice and had the scow operating that day without trouble. As soon as the current subsides he expects to resume trips.

The heavy fog together with the mild weather and rain is wasting the ice fields in the Rondout creek and the Hudson river, and it is only a question of a few days, if present weather conditions continue, that the ice in the river and creek will begin to move out. The rain that has fallen has formed pools of water on top of the ice.

Saugerties Also Wants a Bridge

The Saugerties Post says that not to be outdone by other upper Hudson localities, the Saugerties Chamber of Commerce at its monthly meeting this week, at the suggestion of Supervisor John C. Shults instituted the initial steps of a movement leading toward the procuring of a highway bridge to cross the Hudson river and thereby linking up Saugerties and Dutchess county. Secretary Olley was directed to write the congressman, senator and assemblyman from this district and request their support in behalf of the proposed bridge.

KENNY SUCCUMBS TO BULLET WOUNDS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 12.—Dennis J. Kenny, son of Honorary Deputy Fire Chief William F. Kenny, died today in St. Mary's Hospital, Brooklyn. He was shot on January 23 by a taxicab driver with whom he had a dispute over fare. Complications and double pneumonia made his condition critical several days ago.

John Lecontine, a taxicab driver, who was arrested as a suspect, still was in jail today without bail. He has admitted, police said, that he shot Kenny.

Hudson River on Annual Rampage; Floods Elsewhere

Lower Section of Albany Suffers From Inundation—Flood Conditions at Schenectady—Five Bridges Fall in Tioga County—Lower Temperature Helps Onondaga.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 12.—With the Hudson river 12 feet above normal and steadily rising, Albany and the upper Hudson valley was threatened today with a serious flood.

The water went over the docks shortly before noon and covered several streets with water from a few inches to a foot deep. Business places along the river front cleared their cellars and carried the goods to upper stories.

The river is clear of ice from Albany to Cedar Hill, six miles south of the city, where there is a huge ice jam. Dynamite may be used to break up the jam, local authorities said.

Despite the fact that the ice in the Hudson was more than a foot thick, the rising water broke it up in great cakes. The ice is solid, however, between this city and Troy.

Lowlands to the south of Albany were under five and eight feet of water. Summer cottages along the river were in danger of being carried away.

The local weather bureau predicted a cold snap for tonight and this was expected to halt the rising water by tomorrow. A continued warm spell, according to the weather man, probably would bring one of the worst floods in the city's history. Snow in the upper reaches of the Hudson is still six and eight feet deep in some places.

Rapid Rise at Schenectady.

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Rising at the rate of one foot an hour, the Mohawk River at noon today was 14 feet above normal. Serious flood conditions are feared as a result of the breaking up of the ice in the Schoharie Creek, one of the Mohawk's largest tributaries.

Streets along the river front were completely inundated. A cold snap is the only thing that will prevent one of the worst floods in the city's history, old time river men declared.

Freeze Saves Onondaga.

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 12.—A freezing temperature today saved Onondaga Valley and the southern section of Syracuse from a record-breaking flood.

The waters in the inundated areas, which last night reached their highest level since last Monday, are reducing steadily.

Tioga Loses Five Bridges.

Oswego, N. Y., Feb. 12.—Five bridges have fallen into the swollen streams of Tioga county, power lines are down, highways are impassable, nearly a hundred homes are surrounded, water mains have broken, and railroads are suffering heavy damages today in the worst floods that this district has ever experienced.

The Susquehanna reached a flood mark of 17 feet last night when an ice jam at Hiawatha Island broke.

The Lehigh Valley railroad has annulled all freight trains west of Moravia and passenger coaches are stopped at washouts and the passengers are transferred in boats to trains on the other side.

The local plant of the Binghamton Light, Heat and Power Company, is crippled as the flood waters have pulled down lines and poles, and the Glen Mary Sanitarium is without water as the Owego Creek has washed out the main supplying all the western section of Owego. That district is generally under water.

The Binghamton-Owego highway in several places is under from two to five feet of water.

Storm Warning Issued.

New York, Feb. 12.—A storm over Long Island and accompanied by gales of great intensity will menace shipping from Delaware breakwaters to Rockland, Maine, and south to Hatteras, today, the weather bureau warned this morning.

FLEISCHMANN REMEMBERS CAPTAIN SMITH IN WILL

Capt. Frank B. Smith, who has many friends in Kingston, and who for a number of years was in charge of different yachts for Julius Fleischmann, is remembered by his late employer who makes a bequest to Captain Smith of $5,000, "in partial recognition of his long and faithful services as captain of various yachts I have owned." Milk Market Stabilized

Dairymen Better Satisfied Under New System of Dairymen's League Whose Officials Expect Only Normal Number of Cancellation of Contracts During February.

In a message to league dairymen on the eve of the annual withdrawal period, which extends from February 12 to 28, G. W. Slocum, president of the association, declares that the league is in a stronger position, both from the standpoint of its own business as a marketing association and also from the standpoint of its relationship with dealers and with the general public, than ever before in its history.

We quote President Slocum's message to the 70,000 dairymen of the organization as it is being carried in this week's issue of the Dairymen's League News, the official organ of the association:

"During the past year and more especially within the last few months we have changed from a surplus to a fluid milk organization. Under the budget system, which has been in operation since April 1, we have effected far reaching economies in our office and field organization. Every department has cooperated to the limit in this effort. At the same time that we have been reducing our costs, there has been a steady increase in efficiency all along the line.

"Our association has come to be recognized as an organization of business farmers who have a legitimate, definite objective in view and who have a definite, constructive plan for reaching that objective. We have made progress because we have pinned our faith to that plan and we have backed up our faith with real cooperation.

"Not only are we getting our milk business organized so that we can hold our own in the milk markets where we sell but we are putting ourselves in position to be of increasing service to those dealers who buy from us and consequently to the great mass of consumers who drink the milk from our thousands of league dairy farms.

"I am sure that the same splendid spirit of cooperation and loyalty that has actuated league farmers from the beginning and that has made all this progress possible will continue unabated through another year and through many other years until we have an organization that will not only give us fair prices for our products but one that will be recognized in the business world and by the public as an organization of outstanding merit and real service."

Local officers of the league report that comparatively few withdrawals of actual fluid milk producers are being received. The new policy announced by the association has greatly increased the prospects of the dairymen for a more stable market and relatively better prices. League members who a few months ago were considering cancellation of their contracts, have changed their minds and have become enthusiastic over the present outlook.

At the same time, it is understood, there are a good many non-poolers in some localities who are considering making application to the league for membership. League farmers say this is due to the fact that some non-pool dealers have already indicated that they may not be able to furnish a fluid market for all of the milk of their patrons. This is undoubtedly the result of the league's recent announcement that it has now become able to readjust its business on a fluid basis and intends hereafter to keep its surplus down to a minimum.

THE WHY, WHEN AND WHERE OF FASHIONS

Straw Hats.

The first person in England known to have owned a straw hat was a certain Sir John Fastolfe, in 1459. Where his hat came from, we do not know, as the industry is said to have been first established on Scottish soil by Mary, Queen of Scots, toward the end of the XVI century. She noticed the contended attitude of straw workers in France, and perhaps imagined there was something in the work to bring happiness.

Straw hats became articles of luxury in France as early as the XIV century. King Charles VI in 1396 owned straw hats faced with red silk and trimmed with embroidery and gold or silk fringe. Five years later, the Duke of Orleans bought 210 plaited lime bast hats for his household, some of these being dyed, others with vermilion satin and trimmed with gold fringe.

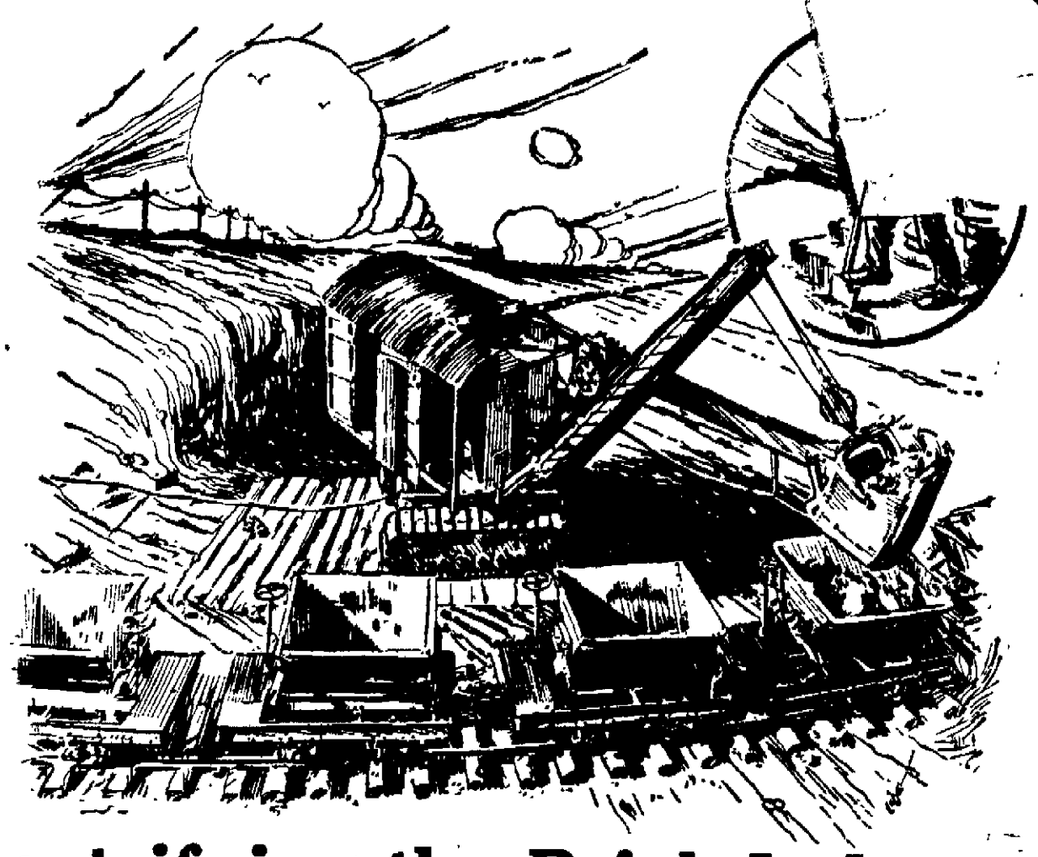

As far as known, the first straw bonnet plaited in America was made by Miss Betsy Metcalf, at Dedham, Mass., in 1789. In 1824 the first straw braiding school was established in this country in Baltimore. The term "Panama hat" seems to have come into vogue about 1855, although the article itself was known a long time before that date.

The humble straw and still humbler wicker were used thousands of years ago for head covering. But they were too common, and did not appeal to the more refined classes of Greece and Rome. Moreover, in Rome, men wore hats only when they did not wish to be recognized. Yet the finest straw for hats originated in northern Italy. So desperate were the English in the XVIII century to capture the straw hat trade, that there was talk of taking shiploads of Italian soil to Britain in order to raise the straw.

HIGH FALLS.

High Falls, Feb. 12.—In the Reformed Church next Sunday morning the Girl Scouts will attend the service in uniform and the Rev. Thomas S. Braithwaite will speak on "The Ideal Woman." Sunday school at 9:30. Thomas Snyder superintendent. Christian Endeavor meeting at 7:30. Topic, "Christian Friendliness."

Electrifying the Brick Industry In the Central Hudson Region

TWENTY NINE great brick yards in the Central Hudson Region are now reached by electric distribution lines and are being served by the Central Hudson System.

The brick industry is an important source of wealth in this region, producing around 600,000,000 bricks a year. This means, in terms of money, from $9,000,000 to $13,000,000 annually.

Brick companies are finding Electricity economical, efficient, and reliable in performing the gruelling tasks of the yards, from mining, grinding, mixing and pressing of clay to the handling of bricks in various stages of manufacture.

Rapid strides are being made in the complete electrification of the yards. Human energy in this Twentieth Century is too valuable to be used in tasks that Electricity can do so much easier and better. Electrification means conservation of human energy.

It is predicted that plants already on distribution lines will increase their use of electricity 35% in 1925. Thus, Electric Service is making a real contribution to Central Hudson Region prosperity by increasing output and reducing production costs.

Every manufacturing undertaking requiring power can use Electricity to advantage. The brick industry is an outstanding example. Few industries compare with the brick yard in point of heavy loads.

THE COAT LENGTH IS AS YOU LIKE IT

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

There is no emancipation from the slavery of fashion. Women, however, are willing slaves, and go about jingling their chains of pearls, fettered with all manner of lovely things.

For all that, there is much freedom. For instance, one must have a coat, but one may have it of almost any fabric within reason—and some without—and may have it of any length which brings out the best detail of the costume. Among the newer collections, suits for spring are shorter in their jackets as well as skirts, and by suit, one usually implies a complete dress with jacket, instead of the coat and skirt idea.

A good many of these jackets are finger-length, and for this reason designing interest is largely centered on the skirt.

For strictly tailored wear, the mannish influence dominates, but there are so many suits which, while tailored, are not of the mannish type, that one should take one's type and the occasion in mind before deciding for or against the extremely mannish—and extremely smart—suit.

It must be remembered that it is not true that a tailored suit can be worn any time during the day. As long as tea dances are such a popular divertissement, tailored suits are endangered, for no woman with any pride of appearance in her soul will dance in a suit. Many spring suits are of novelty materials and of silks, and there is another effort to popularize silk alpaca. The new suits are very smart—be assured of that—and, of course, you'll need one, no matter how many coats and dresses you may boast.

Seek Reason for Higher Gas Price

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 12.—An immediate investigation by the federal trade commission into the "recent arbitrary and unwarranted increases" in the price of gasoline was demanded today in a resolution introduced in the senate by Senator Trammell, Democrat, Florida.

The commission would be authorized to bring anti-trust proceedings against all gasoline companies involved in the increased prices if an investigation warranted this action.

Buying Shoes That Fit; Things to Remember

In spite of all that is said and written in derision of the modern "Cinderella's sisters" who are willing to chop off their toes in order to be able to wear a certain size slipper, perhaps the fact remains that most women would prefer to escape the inquisitorial tortures in modern shoe leather, and to wear a shoe that is right for their feet—if they only knew how to get such a shoe. One shoe expert estimates that 75 per cent of his sales during the past year have been from his "sensible shoe" stock!

But the average woman, shopping for a pair of shoes, has no definite knowledge of what really constitutes a "good fit," and must rely upon the word of the salesman. Perhaps remembering how she insisted upon taking a certain type of shoe before, and suffered the consequences, she is quite ready to rely entirely upon his judgment at this time—or perhaps, disillusioned and skeptical about ever finding style and comfort in the same shoe, she thinks "it doesn't make much difference anyway."

In the first place, it does not do, when trying on a pair of shoes, simply to sit still and admire them on the footstool. When you are trying out a pair of shoes you must walk on them. All this takes time. Many women who will spend hours selecting a hat, plan to get a pair of shoes on the way to the matinee and to have the old ones sent home in the box.

The salesman judges the fit of a shoe by running his finger slowly over the vamp of the shoe after it is on the customer's foot, and observing the following points; which you should be ready to notice too:

See that the bend of the great toe comes at the widest part of the shoe. This insures that the shoe is long enough to allow the foot to expand naturally without cramping the toes, and is considered by shoemen to be the most essential point in fitting the shoe.

Stand up and walk about in the shoe, to ascertain if it is wide enough to permit the toes to spread, and be sure that the great toe lies perfectly straight and does not crowd over or under the second toe.

Wiggle the toes and twist and turn the foot about to make sure the ball of the shoe is wide enough to allow the foot to bend easily.

Feel the instep above the shank to tell if the shoe fits snugly up against the instep. Try pulling the heel up and down in the shoe to see that it fits snugly and will not slip.

The lacing should come together over the instep, but should lace snugly without meeting. Buttons should meet over the instep with a neat fit, but should not cramp the flesh. If every button across the instep seems to need setting over, be sure the shoe is not the correct size.

BEDDING COMPANY LOSES IN NEGLIGENCE SUIT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, N. Y., Feb. 12.—A supreme court jury today returned a verdict for $1,500 against Clifford Holden and Isadore Gorelik, proprietors of the University Bedding Company, 215 East Adams street, for the death of Mary Barasch, who was fatally burned while playing near a bonfire in the company's yard last April.

Frank J Barasch, the child's father, had sued for $10,000.

Barasch, through his attorneys, Keith F. Driscoll, charged that the bedding concern was negligent in allowing the children to play around the fire, and in leaving the fire unguarded.

JAPAN'S NEW MOVE.

For years the ready and sufficient answer to Japanese complaint, particularly against laws of our Pacific States denying Japanese residents the right to own land, was that Japan itself refuses to permit aliens to own land within its borders, thus refusing Americans rights which her nationals clamor to secure in America. Now we read that the Japanese government proposes to adopt a new policy and permit foreigners to own real estate in Nippon, thus removing the basis of the ready American answer to Japanese objection to our rulings. It is surprising that this decision has not been reached before, for Japan could have changed her law in this particular with but little real sacrifice, very few foreigners conceivably desiring to settle or own land in a country too crowded to offer promising advantages.

In any case the new law would seem to be a shrewdly designed means to an end. Obviously it relieves Japan of the inconsistency of demanding abroad what its own law denies at home, and puts that country in a position to offer other western nations a privilege which presumably the United States will be deprived of as long as it denies the reciprocal right. We can afford to be indifferent to such discrimination, if made, as is no doubt recognized by the Japanese government, whose real object, apparently, is to put an end to an argument we have made much of, and thus be able to press its claim with greater force. This latest development adds to the evidence tending to show that the Japanese have no intention of giving up their fight against exclusion. Though we may never yield, continuing agitation and disturbance may be counted on as certain.

A STRANGE CASE.

French opinion is said to support the verdict of the Paris jury acquitting Mme. Uminska, a beautiful Polish actress, for shooting Jean Zyonowsky, a Polish writer and war veteran, her fiance, at his alleged request, in order to end his terrible suffering from incurable internal cancer. The young woman's deed was described as "a crime of charity," and even the prosecuting attorney sympathized with her, actually following his formal declaration that nobody had the right to kill under any circumstances with the confession in court he wished he were acting on the side of the defense. No wonder the jury decided to acquit after a conference of only three minutes.

Perhaps only in Paris, where Anatole France was given the funeral of an emperor and where art is the object of a general enthusiasm found nowhere else, would the woman on trial have been treated with such high consideration and her story received with such sympathy and implicit confidence. In England or America she would have been at great pains to prove that she had no other than the motive claimed, and there would have been wide discussion as to whether even a physician has a right to end a patient's life in order to save him from cruel pain during a few hours or days. It would have been pointed out that the wisest physicians are fallible and that patients given up for lost have sometimes lived for years, even recovering fairly good health. One question suggested by the account of this strange case seems not to have occurred to the Paris jury or public. Granting that Mme. Uminska's story was quite true, why did she not induce the physician to ease the patient off with a drug, or have done so herself, instead of employing a pistol and condemning her lover to shockingly violent death?

An interested investigator, who has been touring England to see what the public likes in movie drama, reports taste there to be much the same as in America. Heavy German films such as the Nibelung Gold go in America, he said an interviewer, explaining: "Woman goes to the pictures to feel with the heroine and the hero, to share their sorrow and joy; that is how she gets her kick out of the pictures." As for the men, they are not to be considered. "A good husband takes his wife where she likes to go and a bad husband—well, he takes her out so seldom that it doesn't matter." The conclusion of Joseph Schenck, the investigator, is that "the woman who goes to the pictures ought to have what she wants." Fiction publishers as well as stage and movie producers have let it be known before that the way to bid for the largest popularity was to try to please women.

That Body of Yours

A FAVORED AGE.

Physicians and others, dealing with statistics, have discovered that there is a regularity about the life line of any number of people, any nation in fact. That a great many die in the first few weeks of babyhood is unfortunately true, and a great many in the second, third, fourth and fifth years.

Perhaps a smaller number from from five to eight. Then from eight years to sixteen, a smaller die than at any other age in the history of the life.

It would appear that once they get over babyhood and then the young children's diseases, such as measles, scarlet fever, and so forth, that they are immune to some extent until they reach puberty, that is manhood and womanhood.

There is no question, of course, but that nature is good to them during this growing time, but not really as generous as she is just at puberty itself, when the increase in weight, height and general development, is nearly twice as much as for any year, or eighteen months preceding puberty.

Now why is the death rate less in boys and girls from eight to sixteen? One can only venture the suggestion that it is the "play period" in the lives of children.

They have no responsibilities aside from light home work, and an occasional chore. They can be outdoors practically all the time. This means the vigorous running that is the big part of all children's games. The call on the heart to pump hard and fast, the call on the lungs to purify this extra quantity of blood sent to it. The call for more food to supply this extra blood with the materials it needs for building up worn parts.

You can readily see the circle that is maintained.

Further, every part of the body is functioning, and that is what it is meant to do.

Use of the body means development and health.

Hence the health of children eight to sixteen years of age.

Bringing Aerial Through Window

Lead-in Strap Will Aid in Making More Efficient Installation.

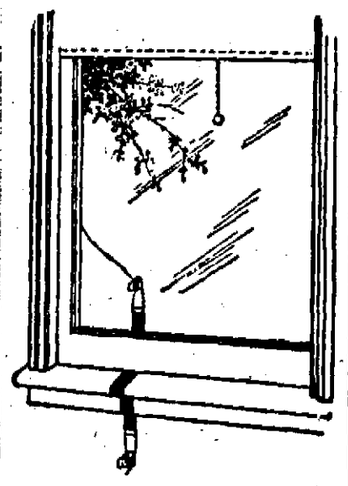

Radio has shown that many of us are far from being mechanical geniuses. In the early days of radio, back when every one built his own apparatus from socket to variometer, the problem of an aerial was an easy matter. The hardest job was convincing the landlord it would not invite disastrous calamity in the shape of lightning or flood.

The radio fan of yesterday was a mechanic from necessity. To install a radio set one needed to be an expert electrician. Where the lead-in came through the window and side of the house, for example, it was necessary to drill a hole and insert a long porcelain tube. Ordinary drills were too short for this purpose. It needed an extension bit, such as electricians use to drill through floors.

The inventive minds of the radio world have been busily training to ease the troublesome task of installing a radio set. One of the kinks along this line of progress that has come to notice is the lead-in strap that solves the particular problem of bringing the aerial through the side of the house into the room where the set is to be used.

The strap consists of a strip of heavily tinned copper which has a phanestock clip soldered to each end. Heavy insulation is wrapped around the center of the strap and under this is placed a strip of stout webbing. The strap is placed on the window sill, as shown in the illustration, and the window is closed, the sill resting on the insulated part.

It is a difficult matter to solder connections in an aerial system and, unless the joints are soldered or well-made, they soon corrode when exposed to the atmosphere. The lead-in wire may be fastened directly to the phanestock clip; the wire to the set is fastened on the other end.

It is often better to place a lead-in at the top of the window, where it will be out of the way and there will be no danger of disturbing it by opening the window. It is better protected from the window in this manner and the lead-in does not show in front of the window. This labor-saver lightens the task of erecting an aerial and makes a more efficient installation. It has gained the favor of the landlords because its use does not in any way spoil the appearance of the woodwork of the building.

RADIO RHYMES

By Robert Stewart Sutliffe.

TWO BUGS

YOUNG SLIM JONES was out for radio, with heart as well as head; it had him in a demon grip, the smiling neighbors said; he read it, talked it, wrote it, dreamed it, morning, noon and night; the old barn where he tinkered with it surely was a sight.

With odds and ends and things he'd purchase, he made many a set, and then he'd try out some new wrinkle to reception get; he'd take it down and reassemble, rebuild this or that, and when outdoors, he used an outfit built within his hat.

He had antennae on the house-top, loops he moved about; he even tried to get Alaska on a water spout; but the paramount ambition that was in his head, was how to get some good transmission, through springs upon his bed.

But this was where young Slim was bested, it somehow wouldn't go, although he tried a lot of tricks he'd learned 'bout radio; he tested out his whole equipment, tried a hundred things, but no signal, voice or music ever came through the springs.

Then one day he told his problem to an engineer; told him how he had adjusted all his bedstead gang; how he'd tried out all the jimcracks of his kit and; but the springs had always failed him, not a sound he'd get.

Patiently the fellow listened; then said with a shrug: "Youngster, in your bedstead circuit, I have found a bug."

LADIES' NIGHT DINNER AT FAIR STREET REFORMED

The Men's Bible Class of the Fair Street Reformed Church will give its annual Ladies' Night Dinner, Friday evening, at 7 o'clock. This is the dinner that is cooked and served by the members of the class to their wives and friends. The Men's Bible Class has a membership of 115 members, so every year the kitchen committee's job gets larger, but they inform us that they will be all prepared to serve the dinner at 7 o'clock. Dr. Robert A. Watson of the South Reformed Church of Brooklyn will be the speaker and guest of the class. The Rev. J. V. Wemple and wife of Saugerties will also be the guests of the class. Zucca's orchestra will furnish the music. Any of the members who have not already obtained tickets can get them at the William S. Elting drug store.

Masquerade at Port Ewen.

There will be a masquerade dance this evening at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen. Music will be by Paul Zucca and his singing orchestra, featuring George Schilling in popular songs. A prize will be awarded for the most comical dressed person on the floor.

Boys Hexathlon Championship

Will Be Held at Y. M. C. A. During March—Classification of Boys and Events They Will Compete In—To Award Medals.

The local Y. M. C. A. has again entered the National Hexathlon for Boys. This event is conducted yearly by the Athletic League of the Young Men's Christian Association and is a measurement of the physical ability of the members of each association.

During the past years Kingston has made a wonderful showing, placing in the first ten cities in the United States and last year taking sixth place.

The athletic events are graded to meet the physical strength of all members of the boys' department so there is a place for the smallest boy as well as the largest.

The small fellow weighing from 60 to 80 pounds is in a class by himself and competes in the following events.

One lap potato race.
Three lap potato race.
Standing broad jump
Running high jump
Snap under bar.
Target throw.

Boys weighing over 80 pounds but not more than 95 pounds, are also in a class by themselves and compete on a different basis in the following events.

One lap potato race.
Four lap potato race.
Standing broad jump
Running high jump
Snap under bar.
Target throw.

The next class is for boys who weigh over 95 pounds but under 110 pounds. Their events are as follows:

Two lap potato race
Five lap potato race
Standing broad jump.
Running high jump
Snap under bar.
Target throw.

With the change in weights to the next classification, which runs from 110 pounds and to under 125 pounds, there is a marked change in events. The boys in this classification take part in the following events:

Two lap potato race.
Six lap potato race.
Standing broad jump
Running high jump.
Eighth shot put
Fence vault.

The last group of events are for boys who weigh over 125 pounds. These fall in what is known as the unlimited class. These events are as follows

Three lap potato race.
Six lap potato race.
Standing broad jump.
Running high jump.
Eighth shot put.
Fence vault.

The local Y. M. C. A. will award medals and ribbons for the boys placing first, second and third in each event and will also give the National Hexathlon bronze button to all boys scoring 400 points. For 500 points the silver button will be awarded and 600 or more points will give a gold button.

This contest, which will be held during the month of March, is open to all members of the Boys' Department of the association. Entries should be handed to the physical director before March 1st.

Practice in the above events is being held daily in the gym classes. Kingston Y. M. C. A. might make a good showing.

"Diana" Dead

EMIL WILSON & ALICE GRAY.

Alice Gray, a college-bred girl of Chicago, who nine years ago renounced civilization for a hut on the "Indiana sand dunes," is dead. Miss Gray, better known as "Diana of the Dunes," married Paul Wilson and they lived together on the sandy wastes, isolated from all others. "Diana's" only wish when she died was that her body be cremated and her ashes thrown to the winds along the sand dunes she loved.

MAKES PROFIT OF $90,000 WITHOUT CASH INVESTMENT

Texas Man Earns $1,500 Every 20 Hours for 60 Days by Trucking Oil Supplies.

Wortham, Texas.—John Riley stands to clean up $90,000 in 60 days on a "shoe-string" investment. He was attracted here by the recent big oil discovery and upon arrival found that there was a freight blockade, due to the enormous increase of railroad traffic.

The oil operators and other persons were clamoring for their shipments of derrick timbers, well equipment and general supplies. Riley had only a few dollars in his pockets, but it occurred to him that he might turn the car blockade to his personal financial advantage. He quickly learned that the loaded cars were for the most part tied up in the yards at Mexia, ten miles south of the new oil field, and that the congestion was also in Wortham and upon the sidings of the railroad between here and Mexia.

The biggest operator in the field is the Humphreys-Boyd Oil company. Riley went to the office of Col. W. E. Humphreys, head of the company. He refused to state his business to any but Colonel Humphreys himself.

"Colonel, I've 15 big trucks. How much will you give me for their use?"

Without hesitation Colonel Humphreys said:

"One hundred dollars a day each for ten hours."

Riley closed the deal, hopped a train for Wichita Falls, hunted up 15 truck drivers who owned their own trucks, engaged them at $50 a day each for ten hours and an additional driver for ten hours night service and returned to Wortham and closed another deal for use of the trucks during ten hours of the night at $100 each. The contract runs 60 days, giving him $1,500 profit every 20 hours, or $90,000, without any capital except his own ability to see an opportunity and seize it.

Films Heartbeats With Aid of Tiny Quartz Wires

New York.—To men of science the announcement that Dr. Willem Einthoven of the Leyden university, Holland, is winner of the Nobel prize carrying the double honor of medicine and physics came as due recognition for his eminence in physiological research.

Doctor Einthoven invented a device to picture the human heartbeat. With the aid of his string galvanometer, medical science has revolutionized treatment of certain types of heart disease. For this comes the Nobel honor.

His device employs tiny threads of quartz so fine that no scale can weigh them and which disappear under the eye of a microscope. Their diameters, side by side to a million or more, could lie on the point of a pin.

Such delicate fibers, because of perfect flexibility, give sensitive, quick reactions to even the slightest movement.

To picture the heartbeat the subject is seated in a chair—one hand and one foot from opposite sides of the body, or both hands, in glass jars which contain salt solution and have an electric wire connecting the jars to the picture-making machine.

Walks 2,573 Miles to Church in 55 Years

Mount Vernon, Texas.—At the fifty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the Sunday school of the Baptist church, H. H. Weaver, its organizer, said he had spent three months and twenty-four days walking to and from the Sunday school, and that the total distance traveled by him was 2,573 miles. He has been absent only three times. This is how he arrived at the time spent in going to and from Sunday school, and the total distance walked.

He said he took 2,200 steps every Sunday, 52 Sundays in a year, 114,400 steps a year, and 55 years, 6,292,000 steps; 2,445 steps in one mile; 6,292,000 divided by 2,445 steps equals 2,573 miles.

Time used in walking to and from Sunday school in 55 years, 24 minutes every Sunday; 1,248 minutes every year; 68,640 minutes walked in 55 years; 1,144 hours walked in 55 years; 10 hours the average day, 114 2-5 days walked in 55 years.

British Scientist Pokes Fun at His Countrymen

London.—A scientist has made the discovery that the "most silent and inarticulate animals in nature are geese, owls, oysters and Englishmen," according to Sir St. Clair Thompson, president of the Royal Society of Medicine, at a recent dinner.

"It is curious," the speaker declared, "that after-dinner speaking should be a custom with a people who speak as badly as we do. None of the four nations which compose our more or less United Kingdom can claim clarity of expression," he continued. "The Welshman talks a language of his own, which no one else understands, and he, therefore, does not count; the Irishman suffers from confusion of thought; the Englishman is afflicted with confusion of speech, and the Scotsman, when he goes to a public dinner, especially if wine is included, always hopes to leave the table speechless.

Important Finds

Three important archeological discoveries were the Rosetta stone, found in 1799, which bears a proclamation in hieroglyphics, Demotic and Greek; the excavations at Thebes, which opened up the Rameside and neighboring periods, 1700-1000 B. C.; and the temple library at Nippur.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS

The Billy Allen musical comedy company scored its biggest hit Wednesday in that lively musical comedy, "A Wise Fool." Pretty songs, snappy dances and a world of beautiful costumes worn by his dashing beauty chorus. It will be presented for the last two times tonight at 7 and 9. The photoplay shown in conjunction with the regular show is Shirley Mason in "The Diamond Mystery," an action thriller packed with romance. An all new program will be presented for Friday and Saturday.

At the Auditorium tonight Rupert Hughes's drama of home and business with an all star cast including Aileen Pringle, Eleanor Boardman, Louise Fazenda, Norman Kerry, William H. Crane and Raymond Hatton. "Daring Love" will be shown for the last times at Keeney's tonight. This is a powerful story of regeneration of two lost souls through the redeeming virtues of love, a love so strange that its kind has never been seen on any screen before. "The Painted Lady," the William Fox special production featuring George O'Brien and Dorothy Mackaill, which is booked to open at Keeney's Friday and Saturday, is more than an adaptation from the Saturday Evening Post [illegible] of Larry Evans.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

MRS. DUCK'S DELIGHT

"Quack, quack, quack-quack," said Mrs. Duck. "I never knew how lucky I was until yesterday.

One of Sadie's Friends.

"I always thought I was a busy duck. But I find I'm not nearly so busy as little Sadie is.

"One of Sadie's friends came around to see her yesterday and she said:

"'Come on, Sadie, come on out and play.'

"But Sadie called back and said:

"'I can't come for an hour, anyway. I've the beds to make and I promised to help wash the dishes.'

"Well, I thought to myself, I'm a lucky duck. I don't have to make beds and I don't have to wash dishes.

"Of course I would have a nice place to wash them in, here in the brook, and I could use pleasant weeds as dish rags, but still I'm glad I don't bother with all such things."

"I agree with you, quack, quack, quack-quack," said Miss Duck.

"Ah, yes," said Mrs. Duck, "it is so much simpler to have no dishes at all, but just eat as one goes along.

"Now, when a cow is taken to some other place and has to go in a wagon and then on a train in a stupid small place, after having been in the lovely meadow, I say to myself:

"'Poor cow. You've known better days.'

"I've seen the trains go by the station at the far end of my brook.

"And I've thought to myself how lucky I was, not to be a cow. Then it's much nicer to live in a brook than anywhere else—even than in a palace.

"Of course, Bessie, the farmer's old horse is very lucky. You know Bessie is quite old and doesn't have to work any more.

"Bessie is allowed to wander anywhere she likes.

"She is a wonderful horse, for she goes down the paths and the walks, but never steps on the lawn or the grass anywhere except in the meadow.

"The farmer adores her and all the members of the farmer's family adore her.

"But, just the same, I think I'm a very lucky duck. It gives me delight to think how lucky I am.

"Now I must go down to see Miss White Duck at the end of the pond.

"I said I'd have a drink of brook water and a bite of bug with her this afternoon.

"Were you invited?"

"Yes, yes, indeed," said Miss Duck. "I'd almost forgotten. I was so interested in what you were saying."

"Ah, you flatter me, but it is most delightful, too. Well, I suppose we must be off."

So the two ducks started for the end of the pond and there Miss White Duck was waiting for them.

"Quack, quack, good-afternoon, Duck ladies," she said.

"Good-afternoon, quack, quack," said Mrs. Duck.

"Good-afternoon, quack, quack," said Miss Duck.

"Horrid weather we've been having lately, quack, quack, is it not so?" said Miss White Duck.

"Terrible," said Mrs. Duck. "Quack, quack, terrible."

"Horrible, quack, quack, horrible," said Miss Duck.

"And yet, come to think of it, it hasn't been so very bad," said Miss White Duck.

"No, come to think of it, it might have been much worse, quack, quack," said Mrs. Duck.

"We Must Be Off."

"True," said Miss Duck. "Quack, quack, it might have really been bad."

They had their brook water and several insects apiece, and after they had chatted some more about the water and the insects Mrs. Duck said she'd have to be getting home to her family.

"Such a lovely time as I've had; thank you so much, dear Miss White Duck."

"I, too, have had a beautiful time," said Miss Duck.

And Miss White Duck said:

"Quack, quack, it has been such a pleasure to see you both. Do call soon again. Just drop in any time. Any time at all."

"Ah, yes," said Mrs. Duck, as she reached her special home section. "It is my delight that I am a duck. I have such a ducky time, quack, quack."

Made It All Right

"But isn't your son rather young to join the army?"

"Well, he is very young, but then, you see, he is only going to join the infantry."

GOOD PUDDINGS

At this season of the year richer puddings and sauce are enjoyed.

Suet Pudding.—Take one cupful each of suet, chopped fine, molasses and sour milk. Beat two eggs, add to the milk, mix with suet and molasses and add three and one-half cupfuls of flour, one teaspoonful of soda, one cupful of raisins and currants mixed and spices to taste. Steam two hours. Serve with:

Egg Sauce.—Beat the white of an egg until stiff, add the yolk and beat again, one cupful of powdered sugar, a pinch of salt, one teaspoonful of vanilla, and just before serving a cupful of rich hot milk.

Prune Pudding.—Soak and remove the stones after cooking from one pound of prunes. Cut up, add one pint of coarse bread crumbs, one cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of butter, one-fourth cupful of molasses, three eggs, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-half teaspoonful of cloves, one-half teaspoonful of soda dissolved in one tablespoonful of milk. Mix and steam three hours.

Prune Pudding.—Take one cupful of choice prunes, soak overnight, mince fine, add three stiffly beaten egg whites, one cupful of sugar; pile into a well-buttered baking dish and bake in a slow oven. Serve at once with cream.

Baked Indian Pudding.—Moisten one cupful of corn meal with one cupful of sweet milk and stir into one quart of scalding milk with one teaspoonful of salt. Cook ten minutes, then add one cupful of suet, one-half cupful of brown sugar, one-fourth cupful of molasses, two eggs and a cupful of raisins. Add another quart of milk and pour into a deep earthen dish and bake for four hours. Stir well every fifteen minutes for the first hour, then sprinkle the top of the pudding with flour to form a brown crust with the suet and continue baking until thoroughly browned. This pudding may be reheated and served to the last tablespoonful and will be good as long as it lasts. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Musterole loosens up stiff joints and drives out pain. A clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard, it usually brings relief as soon as you start to rub it on.

It does all the good work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster, without the blister. Doctors and nurses often recommend its use.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Advertising Waste

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, speaking to the recent Distribution Conference at Washington, referred to money wasted in advertising and sales promotion by national advertisers who are not properly informed on market conditions.

Secretary Hoover put his finger on one of the real causes of high sales costs.

This great country is a collection of markets.

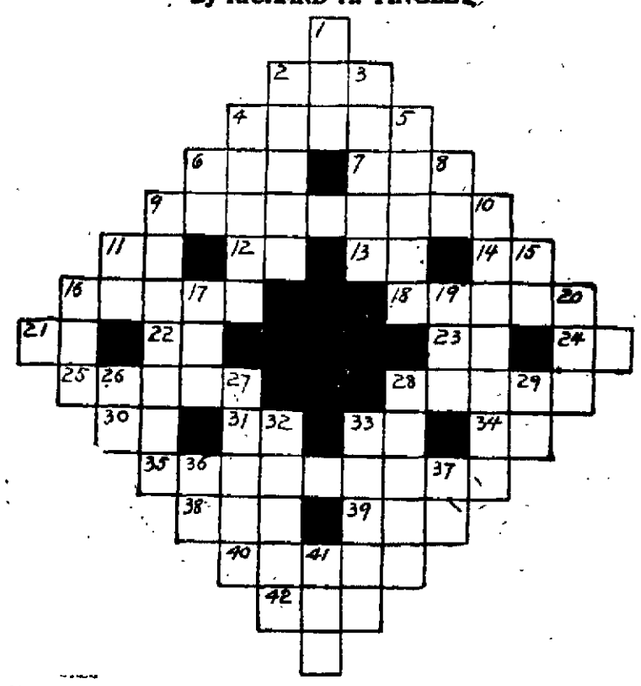

Few manufacturers can profitably enter all markets. Market selection is the national advertisers' sure road to good business.

Newspaper advertising gives the national advertiser one great advantage—he can use it where he needs it. And he needs it wherever market conditions favor the sale of his product.

"The Right Way to Use Newspaper Space" and "The Newspaper Route to All Good Markets" are two valuable books that deal with this big subject. They will be sent, without cost or obligation, to manufacturers and distributors who will address THE BUREAU OF ADVERTISING, American Newspaper Publishers Association, 270 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

LOWER PRICES ON WHITE TRUCKS

Substantial reductions have been made on the light duty models of White Trucks—effective as of February 1.

Model 15	¾-Ton	$2,150	Model 40	3½-Ton	$4,200
Model 20	2-Ton	2,950	Model 40 Dump	3½-Ton	4,800
Model 20 Dump	2-Ton	3,550	Model 45	5-Ton	4,500
Model 51	2½-Ton	3,750	Model 45 Dump	5-Ton	5,100
Model 50 A	(bus chassis)	$4,950
Model 15-45	¾-Ton (special chassis)	2,950

(All chassis prices f. o. b. Cleveland)

IMPROVEMENT in manufacturing methods and expansion of plant have made possible some savings in the cost of manufacture of light duty models. White customers benefit by these improvements and expansion. Now White customers benefit by the savings, too. White policy for a quarter century has been:

"Build the best truck you can build; sell it for what it costs to build—plus a fair profit."

White quality remains unchanged at these lower prices. The heavy duty models were reduced when manufacturing economies permitted it and no reduction is now contemplated in these models.

The reductions are a further evidence of The White Company's desire to give the motor truck buyer the most money earning miles for his transportation dollar.

White service facilities keep pace with this factory improvement and expansion. White service—quick, well done—is easily accessible at low cost wherever White Trucks are operated. White Trucks remain the standard of value in price and in performance.

Kingston Enters Rutgers League

Again Participates in Interscholastic Debating League—Will Meet Poughkeepsie and Either Newburgh or Nyack in Preliminary Debate.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Brunswick, N. J., Feb. 12.—One hundred and sixteen schools will participate in the debating under the Rutgers Interscholastic Debating League this year. While a majority of these are New Jersey secondary schools, the grouping which has just been completed shows eighteen schools from New York, and two New Jersey preparatory schools. This is the greatest number to participate since the organization of the league in 1914, when the membership was sixteen schools.

At the eleventh annual conference, held recently, measures were taken to form a permanently constituted organization. Heretofore it has been necessary to readopt each year a set of by-laws to govern the debating. This year, however, these by-laws were adopted as a constitution, and the schools represented in the League this year will be considered as charter members of the League. This arrangement places the organization on a permanent basis, will reduce the cost of maintaining it, and allows the committee in charge to put its efforts into obtaining new members instead of working in both old and new ground as in the past.

Two subjects for debate were selected by the schools at the conference from a list submitted by the committee. These are "Resolved that the proposed child labor amendment should be ratified," and "Resolved, that capital punishment should be abolished." The preliminary debates on these questions will be held early in April

The grouping of the New York state schools follows. The first two and the last two schools in each group of four will meet in the preliminary debates, the two winners to meet early in May for the final contest. In the triangular groups the first two schools will meet in the preliminary, the winner to meet the third in the final debate. The victor in each group will have the choice of either a banner or a cup as a trophy from the league.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Most Attractive Gown.

5012. This model is most desirable for an afternoon dress. It may be finished with or without the sleeves. The tunic and waist portions are separate from the skirt, which is mounted on a bodice.

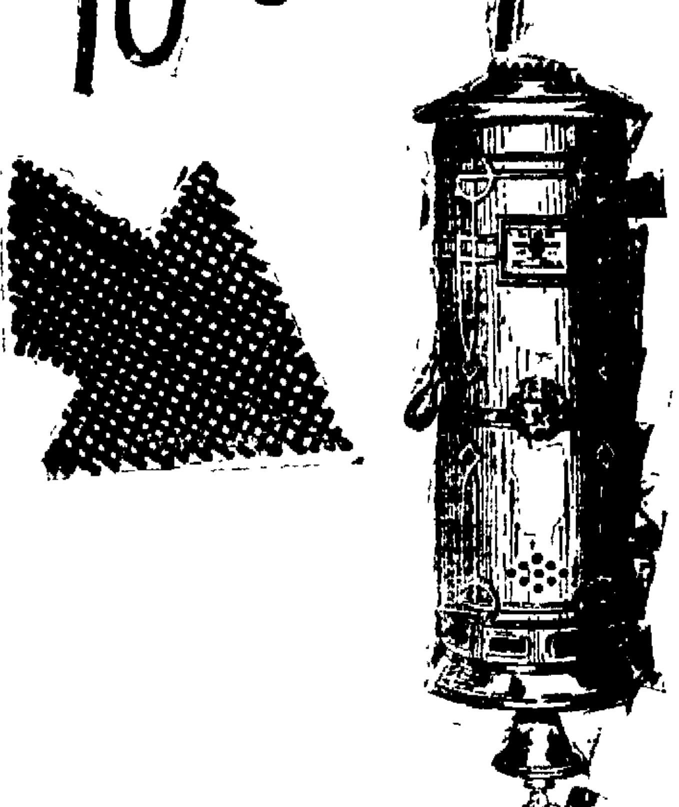

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. If made as illustrated in the large view the dress will require for a 38 inch size 4⅝ yards of 40 inch material. If made with long sleeves 5⅝ yards will be required. The bodice of lining will require 1 yard. The bodice skirt alone will require 2⅝ yards of 40 inch material. The width of the skirt at the foot is 56 inches.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department. The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

SUSAN B. ANTHONY

Was born in South Adams, Mass., February 16, 1820, and died in Rochester, N. Y., where she had made her home, in 1906.

She was one of the most honored of the pioneers of the woman's rights cause. As a child she received an excellent education and became a school teacher. In 1851 she espoused the cause of Suffrage, and the remainder of her long life was devoted to that cause.

For some time she edited a weekly journal called the Revolution, but her influence was most widely felt as a lecturer. She was chosen representative of the American Suffragists at the international conference in Europe.

AUSTRALIAN GOLD DISCOVERY

Gold was discovered in Australia 74 years ago today, when Edward Hargreaves, struck with the similarity between the strata and rocks of California, where he had been in the gold rush, and that of his own district Conobolas, near Bathurst. When he returned to Australia he began digging, and on February 12, 1851 he struck gold in considerable quantities. The find caused wonderful excitement throughout New South Wales, thousands flocking to the new El Dorado. A few months later an Aborigine found a large mass of gold among a heap of rocks and later a miner found 115 pounds of gold in three blocks of quartz.

In the ten years following Hargreaves discovery $160,000,000 was shipped to England, which as usual, claimed "the lion's share."

A. LINCOLN, TAVERN KEEPER.

The name of Abraham Lincoln will be honored today throughout the land—yes and in every place where Americans gather, the name of the wonderful, simple kindly man who was a rock of strength to the Republic in its hour of need, will be honored.

Many new details of "Honest Abe" are coming to light each year as the historian searches more deeply into the life of the martyr-president. It seems that at one time that Lincoln was a member of the firm of Berry and Lincoln, of New Salem, Ill., and in that capacity played the role of tavern host to travellers who visited the village on the Sangamon. Twenty-five cents was the rate charged for either breakfast, dinner or supper, except in the case of stage passengers, who could be required to pay thirty-seven and half cents for a meal, which meant of course the sum of twelve and a half cents for lodging. Many travellers these days of the Hi Cost would welcome back "the good old days" and hope for a firm of Berry and Lincoln, Tavern Keepers indeed.

Sheriff of Ulster County

FRENCH PLANES FEATURE SPEED

Smaller Machines With Increased Engine Power in Demand.

Paris.—Speed, speed and more speed was the main object toward which airplane manufacturers strived during 1924, judging by the exhibits shown at the ninth French aviation salon in the Grand Palais

It seems as if the trend toward monstrous machines, with weight lifting capacity ranging from three to five tons, has been abandoned.

In order to achieve speed, the designers and manufacturers have reverted to monoplanes and sesquiplanes, all-metal wings and powerful motors built as light as possible.

"The manufacturers must build whatever the customer wants," said E Dewoitinne "In our case, the customer is the state and the state wants fast planes, so it is up to us to supply them"

Has Orders for 300 Machines.

There are orders for 300 of these fast planes now on file at the Dewoitinne plant for delivery in 1925. They are distributed among the following governments Yugo-Slavia, Italy, Czechoslovakia, Belgium and Japan. It is understood the largest order comes from the far eastern country.

Nieuport presents a sesquiplane armed with four machine guns, despite the fact that it is only 7.50 meters in length and has a wing spread of only 12 meters. They say its 450 horsepower motor can haul that plane at a rate of 300 kilometers per hour for three solid hours. It has a lifting capacity of 500 kilos.

Potez, Salmson, Breguet and Caudron all turned in "pursuit planes" with dimensions and lifting capacity similar to the Nieuport. They all claim to be able to fly between 250 and 300 kilometers an hour.

Farman alone exhibits a huge bombing biplane, equipped with four 500 horse-power motors, which weighs 11,000 kilos when ready to take the air. This weight includes 2,500 kilos of bombs and 2,000 kilos of fuel

Carries Load of Bombs and Guns.

The armament of this air cruiser consists of 32 bombs of 56 kilos each, with seven to ten bombs of 100 and 200 kilos, all arranged with automatic release. Provision is made for bombs of 500 kilos instead of the lighter bombs when necessary.

Two machine guns, one fore and another aft, complete the military equipment.

It carries a crew of seven men—two machine gunners, two pilots, two mechanics and a navigating officer, who also acts as bombing expert.

A Salmson motor capable of developing 480 horse power and weighing only 330 kilos was the subject of much scrutiny by the experts.

To the layman one of the most popular features of the salon has been the Breguet machine, with which Capt. Pelletier d'Oisy flew from Paris to Shanghai.

The motor which propelled the plane from Paris to Hanoi has been taken apart, and the worn condition of some of the pieces, just holding by a thread, has been giving the visitors a thrill as they discuss "what might have been."

New British Warships Revolutionize Design

London—The design of the battleships Nelson and Rodney, now being built by Great Britain under the provisions of the Washington naval treaty, is so revolutionary, according to the Daily Express, that it marks the end of the dreadnaught era, just as the dreadnaughts marked the end of previous types.

The new ships will be entirely different from any others in the world, the paper says. They will be both floating fortresses and airdromes, and will have a radius of action covering thousands of miles. Nine 16-inch guns will be mounted on each in three turrets, all forward. There will be no guns on the afterpart, which will constitute a flight deck, and the ships will carry their own flying corps and planes

Another feature, the Express says, is that there probably will be no funnels, the products of the furnaces being discharged through pipes running alongside the stern.

Peanut in Throat

New York.—A peanut which lodged in one of the bronchial tubes of nineteen-month-old Arthur P. Baker, Jr., of Middletown, N. Y., three weeks ago and which doctors said was slowly choking him to death, was removed here. Dr. J. D. Kernan, who performed the operation, said that the baby will recover.

Again—Do Not Expect Long Trading Allowances on Any Used Car When You Come to Buy a Chrysler

This statement of eight months ago is repeated in justice to Chrysler distributors and dealers, who cannot in fairness be expected to penalize themselves by making long allowances, merely because the Chrysler may have depreciated the value of other cars.

A car may be a very good car indeed and still it will lack the riding, driving, braking, accelerating, power and speed qualities which thrill the owner of a Chrysler Six.

As we said in June of last year, those qualities are so valuable and mean so much in efficiency and economy that you could well afford to discard the used car without compensation for the sake of the amazing activity of performance and the saving the Chrysler will bring you.

Even if another car originally cost you twice as much, the burden you escape when you acquire a Chrysler—the substitution of more agile and satisfying performance and the stoppage of waste—will more than compensate you.

Months ago we said that because of these unusual Chrysler qualities, the Chrysler was invading all markets and especially those of much higher price.

We also said that the enthusiasm of the public over the Chrysler was certain to affect all motor cars and ultimately all motor car design.

The change in (internal) design has not yet come. Until it does, there is no possibility for anyone who wants Chrysler results to make a comparison between the Chrysler and other cars, whether they be used or new.

It is all a question of whether you want the qualities which the Chrysler alone provides.

If you do, then it is perfectly clear that you cannot compare the value of another used car or any other new car with the value of the Chrysler.

Neither higher prices nor lower prices nor long allowances have anything to do with the fact that there is still only one Chrysler and that it delivers results which no other car delivers.

This is no reflection on any good car. It is simply a statement of facts which every Chrysler owner knows.

The Touring Car, $1395; The Phaeton, $1495; The Roadster, $1625; The Sedan, $1825; The Royal Coupe, $1895; The Brougham, $1965; The Imperial, $2065; The Crown-Imperial, $2195. All prices f. o. b. Detroit subject to current government tax.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. Dealers everywhere.

Writer Laughs at Law to Regulate the Sexes

The law and custom may do their best to establish sex equality, but neither can hope to undo the work of a thousand centuries. Whatever statutes may have to say, men always will seem amusing to women and women always will seem queer to men.

When a woman is ill she wishes to be petted; when a man is ill he wishes to be left alone.

When a woman does wrong she can at once persuade herself that she was not to blame; when a man does wrong he condemns himself utterly, even though the greater part of the fault was another's. A woman is most at ease when she has on new garments; a man in new clothes feels hideously conspicuous, says the Baltimore Sun.

A man can kiss another woman and love his wife no less; when a woman enjoys kissing another man her husband is out of the picture.

A woman loves all the time; a man only at intervals.

A man pretends to know more than he does in an effort to impress his wife; a woman pretends to know less than she does to avoid hurt to her husband's vanity.

A man hates but little and shows the little clearly; a woman hates much and contrives to conceal it.

A woman hides her strength; a man hides his weakness.

A man forgives because he can't remember; a woman remembers because she can't forgive.

A woman is religious because she feels the need of a protector; a man is religious because he would co-operate with God.

Man is led by his appetite; woman is led by her curiosity.

Man will not change his mind, because he first must admit that he was wrong; woman changes here for the sake of expediency even if she knows her first opinion was right.

Legislation can't take away a duck's love of water nor a chicken's aversion to it.

No Hypnotic Crimes

Assertions that crimes have been committed by one person at the hypnotic bidding of another must be relegated to the field of pure fiction, according to Doctor Delboeuf, a French physician, who has made a study of the subject of hypnotic influence. Doctor Delboeuf tells of an experiment that seems to be conclusive. He had one man whom he frequently used as a subject, who could readily be persuaded, while in the hypnotic state, that a stick or bottle or any such object was a pistol, and on being commanded would "shoot" any other person with the mock weapon. But when a real revolver, which the subject in his conscious state had always known to be loaded, was placed in his hands, he would not pull the trigger, though he was hypnotized at the time and the weapon was empty. Doctor Delboeuf is of the opinion that naturally moral persons will not perform under the hypnotic state any acts that are inhibited by their conscious moral codes. He believes also, however, that a person of criminal tendencies might commit a crime while hypnotized, since the idea of crime is not repugnant to his conscious mind.

Superb Horsemanship

Riff horsemen, whose achievements in the war with Spain are frequently referred to in the newspapers, are the most daring riders in the world. When in full gallop they will throw their swords and matchlocks in the air, and catch them by the hilts or locks without drawing rein.

Not long ago a war correspondent declared that he had seen a Riff rider thread a needle held by another rider, while racing full tilt across the sand.

Cossacks are fond of performing similar spectacular feats. One of their favorite tricks at gymkhanas is to snatch a child from its mother's arms, throw it into the air, catch it, and return it unharmed to its parents.

Indian riders of the Great Northwest will dismount while their steeds are galloping, pick up an object on the ground, and remount almost in the same instant.

Bird Not a Linguist

While employes of the California state board of control were gathering for work at Sacramento recently, a pretty parrot flew into the boardroom through an open window. It perched itself on the back of a chair and steadfastly refused to answer any question, even when solicited with a cracker. Finally George Kelaydis, a Greek restaurant owner, appeared at the capitol to claim the bird, and incidentally revealed that the bird does not understand the English language; it speaks Greek only.

Sunday—Golf Day

Bishop Swint, on his way one beautiful autumn Sunday to preach in Wheeling, swept past golf course after golf course crowded with golf players.

Bishop Swint waved his hand towards one of these crowded golf courses and said with a grim smile: —"In the millennium when every day will be Sunday, mankind will get surfeited with golf, and the curse will then undoubtedly become extinct."

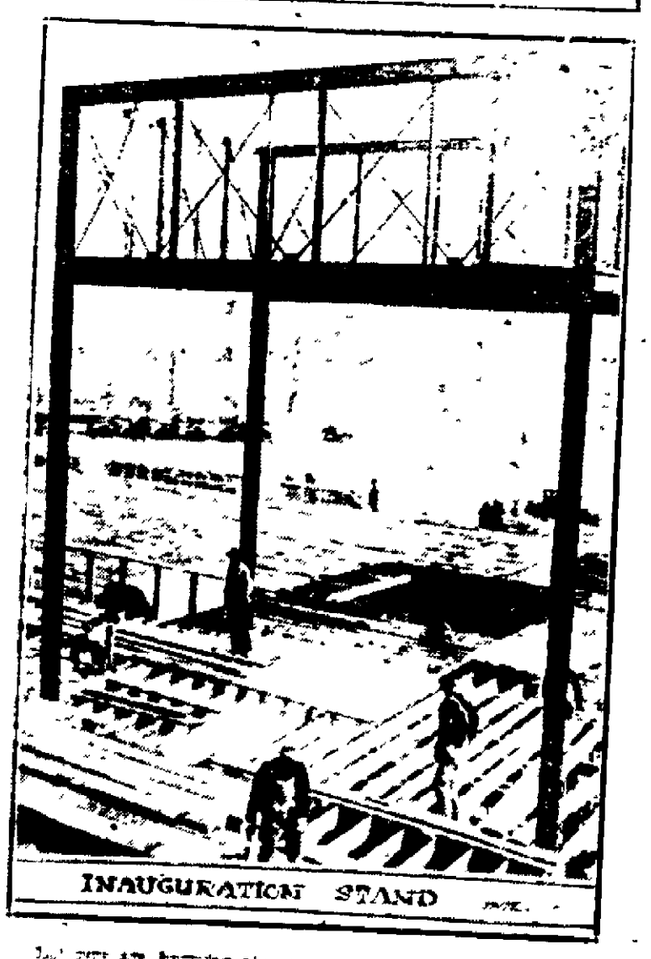

Joy for Curlers

One hundred and eight pairs of Scottish curling stones are on their way to Canada Three stones are the gift of an enthusiastic Montreal curler, T. Howard Stewart, to fellow townsmen who are devotees of the game. This gift to the citizens of Montreal constitutes the greatest single order ever given for curling stones in the history of the game.

ood Manners From Within

y Grow Out of an Inborn Sense f Self-Respect, Miss Horton Tells irls at Y. W. C. A. Supper.

There was another record attend- e at the Y. W. supper on Wed- day evening, and a record supper s served. The group singing t with unusual pep and was re generally participated in than r, so that everybody had a good e.

Two announcements were made. he first was to the effect that next ek's supper—the last before the nten suppers—will be a "sur- ise" supper and all girls and wo- en wishing to attend are reminded at their names must be in at the . W. not later than Tuesday noon. he second announcement was that iss Marsh will give a full series of nten talks at the Lenten suppers is year.

Miss Horton was the speaker of e evening and changed her sub- ct to "Good Manners." Many uestions had been sent to Miss Hor- on relative to proper social pro- edure and these she answered with rare amount of good sense as well s knowledge of social customs and sages. Withal she gave such a umorous twist to many of the oints in her talk as to call forth houts of laughter, yet driving home er point all the more forcefully. Best of all, Miss Horton made it ery plain to the girls that the best manners come from within, growing ut of an inborn sense of self-re- pect, respect for one's elders and superiors for whatever cause, and of a spirit of kindliness toward oth- ers, shown in putting them at their ease. It was one of the very best talks given at any of the Wednesday evening suppers.

Through an error, two names in two groups were omitted from the list of members of the Schubert Choral Club which gave such a suc- cessful concert on Monday evening. The young ladies were at the con- cert and took part. Their names are Miss Naomi Herd, Miss Jennie Hiltebrant, Miss Carolyn Whiting and Miss Margaret Wilmott.

DAY OF REJOICING AND LAVISH REPAST

Fijians Celebrate Anniversary Whole-Heartedly.

In Fiji, which has just celebrated 50 years' of British rule, amid public rejoicing, the art of feasting has, ac- cording to Sir Maynard Hedstrom, commissioner from Fiji, been brought to a more robust pitch than in any other country in the world.

On the anniversary day nearly ev- ery village in the 250 islands of the Fijian group had its ceremonial feast, at which enormous quantities of food were divided among participants who have been making the event the chief topic of conversation for many months past.

Hospitality and good-fellowship are inborn characteristics of every native Fijian. They are characteristics that have been handed down to him from long lines of savage ancestors, who, when not engaged in fighting their enemies, delighted to entertain their friends to lavish repasts.

In his everyday eating the Fijian is frugal enough, but upon ceremonial occasions all his inherited traits come into play, and he organizes feasts upon a Gargantuan scale.

In the center of the feast ground upon a structure of bamboo, the food is thickly piled. The delicacies are numerous and romantic; pigs roasted whole, wild birds stuffed with spices baked snakes, taro, yams, pineapples, and all the luscious fruits of Fiji.

About this edifice the guests group themselves They sit on their haunches gay in ruffles of dyed feathers and kilts of colored cloth. They maintain a rigid and respectful silence, but ev ery brown face is turned upon the stack of food with an expression of the keenest interest and pleasure.

To and fro about the stack move the masters of ceremony. They scan the food and the guests with anxious eyes for theirs is the difficult task of mak ing a fair division. A tactless distribu tion of the food may very easily cause serious offense or even lead to blows among the guests.

At a recent feast a huge shark, wrapped up like a mummy in palm leaves and baked whole, formed the supreme culinary achievement.

The method of catching the monster was spectacular in the extreme. From his canoe a valiant native lassoed the shark by the tail and then played it like a salmon, until, exhausted, it fell an easy victim to the spears of his friends.

Peking's Trolley Line

The first trolley line in China's cap- ital was recently opened with great for- mality, and with the drinking of tea. After an address by the chairman of the French board of directors and Chi- nese officials the eight gaudily decorat- ed cars started on an inspection trip over the new road, which is limited to the western part of the city. Other tracks are being laid. Opposition of the rickshaw men was overcome with the promise to build factories in which they would be employed when thrown out of work by the street cars.

George Melford

Seven years as an actor gave George Melford a great amount of experience which he has used to advantage in the motion picture business. He has given the major portion of his time to direct- ing, and in the latter he has brought out some of the most successful produc- tions. Melford was born in Rochester, N. Y. He is one of the leading lights in filmdom.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name: its history; meaning; whence it was derived; sig- nificance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

FANNY

FANNY, which was originally con- sidered a diminutive of Frances, has become sufficiently an individual entity to be regarded as a separate name entirely. Its origin is in reality very complicated as it is one of a dozen dissimilar names that come from the Frey of Teutonic mythology. Freya was the goddess of love, but she likewise drives over the battle- fields in her car drawn by cats and chooses half the slain whom she es- corts to their seats at the banquet of Valhalla.

The modern Fanny is apparently of the days of Queen Anne, coming into notice with the beautiful Lady Fanny Shirley, who made it a great favorite and almost a proverb for prettiness and simplicity, so that the wits of George II's time called John, Lord Hervey "Lord Fanny" for his effemi- nacy. Fanny is often given at bap- tism instead of the full name, Frances, and by an odd caprice, it has lately been adopted in both France and Ger- many instead of their national con- tractions.

One poet, doubtless seeking to cele- brate the beauty of the lovely Lady Shirley, wrote a "Song to Fanny" which has lyrical charm:

Nature, thy fair and smiling face
Has now a double power to bless,
For 'tis the glass in which I trace
My absent Fanny's loveliness.

Her heavenly eyes above me shine,
The rose reflects her modest blush,
She breathes in every eglantine
She sings in every warbling thrush.

That her dear form alone I see,
Need not excite surprise in any:
For Fanny's all the world to me,
And all the world to me is Fanny.

Fanny's jewel is the wondrously lovely fire-opal. The restless colors of the ordinary opal are far surpassed by the fire-opal whose mysterious depths are shot with flame. The stone is perhaps the only one which super- stition regards as unlucky except in cases of persons born in October Leg- end has it that a pixie clad in bril- liant colors has been imprisoned in the stone: he moves restlessly about seek- ing egress, but only human tears can melt the gem and give him freedom, so he contrives all manner of mischief for the wearer, to bring about that end. Fannie's lucky day is Friday and 8 is her mystic number.

Polish Supper A Huge Success

Third Annual Lincoln Day Parish Supper of Immaculate Conception Church Is Largely Attended—Over $1,000 Realized.

Complete returns from the third annual Lincoln Day Parish Supper held Wednesday by the parishioners of the Immaculate Conception Church show that $1,000 was real- ized. Aside from the marked financial success it was a social success as the success it was a social success to the letter, over 1,000 people attending the affair throughout the afternoon and evening.

The pastor, the Rev. Ignatius [illegible] extends his thank both to guidance, extends his thank both to the committees, who take such an active interest in church work and to active interest in church work and to the many friends of the city and the many friends of the city and parts who braved the inclement parts who braved the inclement weather to take part in the annual weather to take part in the annual social affair.

The usual dancing followed the supper which was indulged in by a large crowd, the spacious hall being taxed to its capacity.

The rooms were very elaborately and artistically decorated. American flags playing the important part of the decorations. A large picture of the martyred president occupied a very conspicuous position in the hall.

The affair was pronounced the best ever held, eclipsing all former affairs. As the friends left for their respective homes they spoke well of time extended by the fourth parishioners.

In Earth's Interior

It is strange that no experts on [illegible] the earth's interior has never been seri- ously attempted. If we could sink a shaft only ten or twelve miles into the ground we might strike all the coal and oil that would be needed in a million years. In all likelihood we should find radium, gold, silver, diamonds and other gems of untold wealth, as well as wonderful metals and fresh sources of energy.—London Times.

Perversity

Man of Feeling

T. S. writes that while entertaining a male friend one evening his little boy who had been sent to bed began to behave badly. Determined to stop the youngster's howling, T. S. grasped a pussy willow switch from a vase on the table and began to strip off the leaves. Whereupon the guest re- marked: "Better leave on the stick all workers, old man."—Boston Tran- script.

Airbrake Thirty Years Old

The airbrake, the invention of George Westinghouse, which revolu- tionized railway operations, is now more than thirty years old, and it is used on more than two and a half mil- lion freight cars, and in motive all passenger cars on railroads throughout almost the entire world. This is the only railroad device that has a universal use throughout the world.

The Duchess of York, wife of the second son of the British rulers, exceeded even her titled husband's record on their present hunting trip in British East Africa, bringing down an immense rhinoceros with one shot. Congressman Nicholas Longworth, of Cincinnati, O., is said to be assured of election as Speaker of the next House of Representatives by the action of a caucus of the Pennsylvania delegation in voting to support him. Dr. Wilhelm Marx, former Chancellor of the German Republic, has been elected Premier of Prussia by the Prussian Diet. Two persons were killed and 100 injured in Marseilles, France, when Communists attempted to break up a meeting of the Catholic Party presided over by General de Castelnau, commander of one of France's field armies in the World War.

Explaining Rain's "Odor"

Rain has no odor, but in falling purifies the air. Often rain is produced by electrical charges in the air, and these charges produce a gas called ozone, which has a delightful fresh odor.

We used to feel sympathetic when we heard of a young girl who had to "shift for herself," but now it might refer to her handling the levers of a handsome roadster.

Quarry Hard to Catch

A "wild goose chase" is a pursuit after something that is as unlikely to be caught as a wild goose. The term alludes to the difficulty in shooting wild geese.

Scouting and Citizenship

Louis S. Coe Gives Interesting Address Over WDBZ on "Scouting and Citizenship—Musical Program Greatly Enjoyed.

Station WDBZ, the local Boy Scout broadcarting station, continued with the Anniversary Week Celebration Wednesday evening with one of the best programs this station has broadcasted up to date.

The solo numbers by Miss Gladys Craw were very heartily applauded by the radio fans and has promised a return visit to the station on next Wednesday by the urgent request of a large number of her followers. Miss Craw will at that time sing two groups of popular numbers.

The Meyer Stling Orchestra composed of the following members: Arthur Allton, piano; Paul Beesmer, zither; Walter Beesmer, zither; Frank Stierle, mandolin; Richard Meyer, violin, played three groups of their most delightful music and from the 'phone calls received from the lovers of good music, their numbers were very much appreciated.

Louis S. Coe, secretary Kingston Chamber of Commerce, then addressed his unseen audience on "Scouting and Citizenship." Mr. Coe's address was as follows:

"In every country there is a pressing need of good citizenship, men of upstanding character, leaders in all those things which tend to make our cities, states, and country that which was in the minds of our forefathers—a righteous nation. Each citizen of which should love God, love his home and obey the laws of the land.

"As one reads the statistics given by those acquainted with our penal institutions and learns the large percentage of the inmates that are under twenty-one years of age, one cannot help but remark that something must be done to bring about a change in the lives of the youth of the land, our future citizens. I am not giving you a new thought when I say that the training should begin in the home. However, we are all aware that there are many agencies outside of the home life that have much to do with character building. Scouting is one of these. You ask, what is Scouting doing to bring this about? Listen to the Scout Oath: On my honor I will do my best—To do my duty to God and to my Country and to obey the Scout Law; To help other people at all times; To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

"A scout living true to this oath will surely carry out the great aim of the Boy Scouts of America which is to make every Boy Scout a better citizen. Running true to form he will be obedient. He will learn to obey orders, for in so doing he fits himself to command. Every community needs leaders who have been trained in such a way that they can see straight and think straight. Men not satisfied with 'crowd morality' but who having been trained as leaders have sufficient confidence and true vision to step out from the crowd and lead others to the higher attainment of true citizenship. He will be thrifty, wasting nothing, making the best use of opportunities, saving his money so that he may pay his own way; he will be loyal, one of the finest characteristics that can be a part in the life of anyone; he will respect himself, causing him to value his standing in his own community; his honor is a sacred thing which will not permit anything but the highest and best and most manly; he will be faithful to himself, to others, to his country and to God; he will be cheerful; never a grouch; he will be kind.

"Surely this is a good plan upon which to build ones life, although like members of all organizations with high ideals, probably many scouts fall short of attainment. Yet is it not better to make the effort to attain than to just drift idly along with no ideal in mind. In my personal contact with the Boy Scouts of Kingston I am able to say without fear of contradiction, that many boys here who have taken up Scouting are doing better than many of us older folks. In living from day to day the life that goes to make up a good citizen.

"Scouting appeals because it instills these many fine ideals into the life of the boy at the time in his life when it will do the most good. Striving for these ideals in the formative period of his life they will become a part of his being so that as he grows up, and is ready to take on the real duties of life laid down by those who will pass on, he will be better equipped to carry on. Any boy who keeps himself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight, will surely make a much better citizen than will the weakling, the slow thinker or the one who leads a careless life during the years of his youth.

"Boys that have absorbed the scout ideals and training into their lives will be well fitted to take their place in the industrial, civic and social life of any community.

"Scouting cannot take the place of home training or of religious training, but it can and does supplement them both, and, working in cooperation with them can fit the boy so that he would be well able to say as did the Athenian boys of old, 'I will never bring disgrace on this our city, by any act of dishonor or carelessness, or ever desert my suffering comrades in the ranks. I will fight for the ideals, and sacred things of the city both alone and with many. I will revere and obey the laws and strive to invite the respect of those above me who are prone to annul or set them at naught. I will strive unceasingly to quickly attain the sense of civic duty, thus in all these ways we will transmit this, our city, not only less but greater and more beautifying than it was transmitted to us.'

"As we the citizens of today think of these lessons that scouting is trying to teach to our boys, do we not feel it our duty to join hands with them and strive to live each day in such a manner that we feel we have done something worth while towards the betterment of our community?

"Our cooperation with them would insure for them the heritage of a city which they would be proud to call their home and whose influence would be far-reaching."

Tonight Captain Everett Fowler will talk from the station. His subject will be "Kingston and its place in the History of Our Country."

FAMOUS FORTS IN U. S. HISTORY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Where Carelessness Cost 400 Lives

At the opening of the War of 1812 there lived at Lake Tensaw, near Mobile, Ala., a wealthy half-breed named Samuel Mimms. His house was built on low, sandy ground, surrounded by a marsh, and around it he had constructed a stockade with an uncompleted blockhouse at one corner.

When the Creek Indians joined the cause of the British the settlers gathered at this fort and in July, 1813, General Claiborne sent a force of 175 soldiers, under Maj. Daniel Beasley, to hold the fort. At first Beasley energetically obeyed Claiborne's orders to strengthen the fort, then allowed the work to slacken when the Creeks failed to make any hostile move. He even became so negligent as to fail to post guards, except at night and, one day when two slaves brought news of having seen signs of a large body of Indians, Beasley ordered them flogged for spreading a false alarm.

The next day, just as the drums beat the noon mess call, a horde of "Red Sticks" (Creek warriors) dashed out of a little ravine near the fort and were within 30 yards of the gate, which stood wide open and unguarded, before they were discovered. Beasley saw them first and ran to shut the gate. As he put his shoulder against the heavy log door the sand, which had drifted against it, held it open for a second. In that instant the Indians struck it, hurled it back, fell upon Beasley and cut him down.

Then the red horde, led by Chief Weatherford, poured into the fort. So desperate was the defense of the soldiers that at first the Creeks were driven back. But Weatherford rallied them and they soon gained full possession of the fort by burning the defenders out from house to house in the inclosure. The slaughter that followed was appalling. Weatherford tried to control his maddened warriors, but he could not hold in check the storm of destruction that he had loosed. Men, women and children went down before the hatchet and scalping knife and, except for 12 soldiers who broke through and escaped into the woods, and one of the 450 survived.

The defenders of Fort Mimms sold their lives dearly, however. More than 400 of the 1,000 Creek warriors who attacked the fort were killed or badly wounded. A year later Weatherford's people were forced to pay in full for the Fort Mimms massacre when "Old Hickory" Jackson defeated them at Tohopeka and blotted out forever the flower of the Creek fighting force.

First Record of Coal

According to the earliest record, coal was first mentioned in Acadia, now Nova Scotia, in 1604. It was at first gathered without mining, and mention of this is to be found in the records of the year 1721. Coal was shipped to France from Cape Breton in 1768, as stated in a letter from M. Duchambon to the French minister. A letter to the French minister of marine, also colonial minister, dated September 20, 1760, makes mention of the coal found on Cape Breton, near Indian cove.

Christian Science Temple

The original cost of the land on which the mother church of Boston, Christian Science, was built (gift of Mrs. Eddy) was $30,000. The cost of the original edifice was $300,000, including the organ, which cost $80,000. The estimated present value of the lot, with its extensions, is $1,500,000, and the cost of the temple extension $2,000,000. Its seating capacity is 5,000 and it was dedicated in 1906.

Three Freed by Lincoln Living

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 12.—The spirit of Abraham Lincoln hovered today over three aged women—formerly slaves—at St. Monica's home in Roxbury.

Nowhere was his memory on his birthday honored with greater adoration than in the humble, silent reverence of these women.

One of them, Fannie Banks, is believed by the Catholic sisters at the home to be 117 years old.

"God and Lincoln was good to me," she said today. "Lincoln set me free so's I could work for myself and have shoes for my feet."

The other ex-slaves are Amanda Sheppard, 87, and Louise A. Green, 87.

Burns Acquires More Properties

Property on Broadway and Cedar Street Transferred to Treasurer of United Electric Hudson Company —Rumors of Other Sales.

Peter A. Burns of Poughkeepsie, the treasurer of the United Hudson Electric Company has acquired more properties adjacent to the office building property of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company on Broadway.

Deeds were filed for record at the office of the Ulster county clerk, Wednesday afternoon by which John T. Cahill the well-known attorney at law, conveys to Mr. Burns four frame houses with lands that front on the northerly side of Cedar street, near Broadway, the rear of the lots bordering on properties recently purchased by Mr. Burns. Mr. Cahill has been given power to retain the rents due from tenants for the month of February.

Several weeks ago Mr. Burns purchased what was known as the Fitzgerald property of Ettore Raffaldi on Broadway, and the Deegan lot adjoining. Previously the Conroy property adjoining the James A. Phelan store and residence property was secured and lands along Martin's Lane acquired.

There is a report that a contract has been drawn for the purchase of the Phelan property to take effect at the end of two years. It is understood that the negotiations for the transfers of all the properties have been made through W. Arthur Farrar, the real estate broker.

Harding's Father Recalls Lincoln

President Never Cracked a Smile as He Called Himself "The Handsomest Man You Ever Saw"—His Cordial Greeting to Buckeye Boys.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Marion, Ohio, Feb. 12—Dr. George T. Harding, 80, father of the late president, recalling today the only time he met Abraham Lincoln said:

"It was in the White House in August of 1864. I called with another Civil War comrade, E. M. Williams, who afterwards became editor of the Ohio Farmer. I said to Mr Lincoln: 'Mr. President, we are Buckeyes and we came to shake your hand.' Lincoln stretched out both hands to us. 'Well,' he drawled 'I am certainly glad to see such nice looking young men from the Buckeye state, which stood loyally by me. When you go back home tell them that you met the handsomest man you ever saw.' And Lincoln never cracked a smile.

"But," continued Dr. Harding, "when you looked into Lincoln's face and realized the heart of the man he was not so homely. He was a great man."

Just 52 years after meeting Lincoln, Dr. Harding slept in the same room in which he talked to Lincoln when his son was president of the United States.

POULTRY

FIRST REQUIREMENT FOR SANITARY COOP

The first requirement for a sanitary hen house is a roomy, dry building with plenty of window space and easy means of ventilation.

Dropping boards under the roosts are quite essential for the proper maintenance of cleanliness. They should be made of tongued and grooved flooring well laid, and should be at least three feet above the floor of the house. If nests are under the dropping boards, three feet six inches would be better height. In the case of heavy breeds runways up to the roosting perches should be used, but with leghorns and other light breeds they are not necessary.

Dropping boards should be level, and the perches arranged about six inches above them. The perches should be on a level, also, and of 2 by 2 material. They should be fastened to 2 by 4 supports that are hinged at the back end of the house so that the roosts can be raised out of the way while scraping the dropping boards.

A hoe with 15 or 18-inch blade is very satisfactory for scraping the dropping boards, and if used regularly once or twice a week will assist materially in maintaining the health of the flock. A small box arranged to hang from and slide along the front edge of the dropping board platform, to receive the droppings as they are scraped from the board, will help to preserve the fertilizer for the garden.

One nest should be provided for each five or six birds, and even more if trap nests are used. Twelve by twelve inches is large enough and one-fourth inch mesh hardware cloth is excellent for the bottom. Wall nests are to be preferred to those located under the dropping platform, but the wall nests require a top place at an angle of at least 45 degrees, to prevent the chickens roosting on them. The runways along the front of the nests can also be made to fold up in front of the nest openings, which will keep the young birds from roosting in the nests at night and fouling them.

Dry mash hoppers are essential to the economical feeding of the flock; they should be raised on legs 18 inches to 2 feet from the floor.

Water stands should be raised the same as the mash hoppers, and are best made with a slatted top in the middle of which an opening is left to receive a 12-quart pail. The support for the bucket should be about six inches lower than the top of the platform.

A broody coop where feverish hens can be confined and fed is much to be preferred to ducking them or to starvation.

A catching coop is very desirable and almost necessary where any regular and consistent effort at culling is attempted. A heavy wire with one end bent to form a hook and the other end tied to an old broom handle is useful in catching a bird or two, as occasion may demand.

A bin where two or three hundred pounds of scratch grain may be stored in the chicken house is also a labor saver.

Details as to the construction of different items mentioned above must of course vary with the size of the flock and local conditions.

Difficult to Determine Sex of Goose or Gander

Ganders are usually a little larger and coarser than geese. The head of the gander is apt to be larger and the neck thicker. The cry of the goose is rather harsh, while the gander makes a shrill cry. The only accurate way is examination of the organs, or observation of the flock at mating time.

Laying ability of geese depends on the breed and the individuals. Toulouse geese will usually average about twenty eggs, and some produce thirty to thirty-five. White Chinese geese will lay from fifty to one hundred eggs. The Embens are not generally quite as good layers as Toulouse, although very similar.

The lameness may be due to rheumatism caused by spending the night in a damp roosting place. Goslings sometimes become lame, due to faulty feeding methods caused by lack of mineral matter or animal feed in the ration.

Early Hatching Favored

Hatching in March and April instead of May and June has several advantages. In the first place, the early hatches do not meet the strenuous competition of chicks that are incubated by hens later in the season. The incubator can be made to yield more profitable returns by running it during the early months when farm work has not become heavy.

Winter Egg Production

Winter egg production does not depend entirely on the number of hens you keep. Regardless of the size of the flock they will all do the same thing without a balanced ration. Nearly everyone knows what is needed to feed hens a balanced ration. The problem is to keep all the different items on hand all the time. It really takes skillful management to do it, as many poultrymen work on limited capital and something is always running short.

Elm Church Entertainment.

On Friday evening the Dads of Promise of the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church will hold an entertainment at the church. The hostesses are expecting a large attendance as their entertainments are always pleasing.

William Penn Called Original Realty Man

Real estate men declare they feel a little closer to William Penn than the men of other professions because they are led to believe that the founder was the country's first real estate man.

The real estate men do not need to be so modest in laying claim to a first place in the line of allegiance, nor is it necessary to be diffident at all in crowning William Penn a realtor. For that is what he was—a promoter of a big land deal and the seller of lots and blocks and farms and all manners of raw natural resources to all comers, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Not only so, but Penn was a most accomplished advertiser of his overseas boom. His letters and pamphlets talking up his sylvan concessions and persuasively inventorying the advantages to be found there were popular all over England and are now preserved as classics. It is a great mistake to read back into the life of William Penn so much of unworldliness, of devout dream and vision as to obscure the very sound materialistic basis of his undertaking.

Penn called the hardy men and women who answered his advertisements "Adventurers." The word runs all through his pamphlets and charters and the letters he wrote. The modern realtor is entitled to take a good many leaves out of Penn's book. But, in simple justice to the great realtor, he must also study some of the leaves that are too little considered in our time. Penn was not only a seller of land. He was a seller of those things which alone make land worth while.

He advertised to sell liberty with his land, to sell escape from Old world cupidities, to sell new opportunities for the souls of men. In fact, it was the inception that made his plots and lots in the wilderness of America salable. Penn was the ideal realtor, because he made the new land the more outward condition of those rights and liberties without which land in Pennsylvania today would not be worth much more than it was when William Penn was selling it at 2 pence an acre.

Buildings Unfinished

Building public structures in Great Britain is a matter not to be conducted hurriedly or carelessly. For instance, it was recently announced that the County hall, Westminster, will not be fully completed for another half a century. This is not the only example of a famous building being unfinished after many years' labor. When the present Home office was built fifty years ago it was intended to embellish it with four towers. These have never been erected, although provision was made for them by the architect. St. Paul's cathedral has never been finished according to the plans of Sir Christopher Wren, while the Law courts have many niches that have never been filled, as well as numerous blank shields on which heraldic devices were to have been carved. Again, on the Thames embankment there are several pedestals awaiting monuments or statuary, while Somerset house has various omissions in the form of unfilled niches and other decorative details. The houses of parliament, too, have never been completed in strict conformity with the architect's designs.

Electricity in Palestine

Plans for the electrification of Palestine by raising the level of the Sea of Galilee and harnessing the historic River Jordan, involving an operating expenditure of $10,000,000, as described in "Palestine—Its Commercial Resources With Particular Reference to American Trade," by Addison E. Southard, American consul at Jerusalem, recently published by the Department of Commerce. The water project calls for the canalization of the Jordan valley from the Sea of Galilee to the Dead sea, where, under irrigation, it is expected that copious crops of dates, rice, sugar cane, flax and cotton can be produced. Provision for 2,000 miles of motor highways, commercialization of the Bagdad-Cairo airroute, traversing Syria, and agricultural credit banks are among the other innovations contemplated in the modernization of the Holy land, as related by Mr. Southard.

New "Driving Colt"

Young Horace Flint and Patience, a calf born last March, which he has broken to harness, are familiar sights at Brighton Ridge, Maine. Carrying mail, hauling vegetables, scraping the road in front of the house were some of the things they did last summer. Now with the advent of winter, Horace finds more time for a pleasure ride, either with the rig or in the saddle to which Patience has been equally well trained. Patience prefers to stay around the house rather than with the rest of the stock, and is particularly fond of camping on the piazza.

Has Odd Collection

Edward C. Farnsworth, of Portland, Maine, has added another hornet's nest to his collection of those specimens of insect ingenuity, making in all twenty-seven which are hung around the walls of two rooms in his home. All these nests have been found by Mr. Farnsworth in his tramps in the neighboring woods.

Change Canal Rules

The maximum authorized draught of vessels transiting the Suez canal has been changed from thirty-one feet to thirty-two feet, so that ships with a draft of thirty-two feet will be allowed to pass through, whereas now only ships with a draft of not more than thirty-one feet are permitted to transit the canal.

Yes and No

Tommy had been looking forward to Wednesday, on which day the druggist promised to give all the children a bird with each chocolate soda. Wednesday arrived and Tommy hurried to the drug store as he would get his "prize" before they were all gone. When he paid his check he looked at the clerk and asked whether he might have his bird. "Why," answered the man behind the counter, "You got a swallow, didn't you?"

It was a very sad but a very impressive lesson to Tommy. He decided the old saying, "nothing for nothing" was the truest ever spoken.—Indianapolis News.

LAUNDRY TURNS OUT CAR SPICK-AND-SPAN

An enterprising outfit in Chicago has conceived the idea of a laundry for automobiles. The road-soiled car is brought into the plant and a few minutes later it is turned out as spick and span as one would desire. A 150-foot conveyor carries the car from the checking room to a turn table. As the car is carried along on the conveyor each employee has a certain work to do in the turning out of the clean car. The interior of the car is cleaned by vacuum process. The car itself goes through the process of a shower bath before the body is washed and the running gear cleaned and then the car gets a chamois rub and the glass gets a high polish before it is turned back to you all dolled up.

138 Killed in Mine Explosion

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dortmund, Germany, Feb 12—The total of dead in an explosion in the huge coal mines here was put definitely at 138 this evening as rescue crews tried to reach men believed still entombed.

The bodies of 52 of the miners have been brought to the surface. Two rescuers, whose progress is being hampered by poisonous gas explosions, have penetrated to a point 500 meters beneath the surface.

Dortmund's mines furnished fuel for an important industrial region of Prussia, the Dortmund Union alone employing 10,000 workers in the manufacture of structural steel.

Game Preserve In Irwin Suit

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Feb 12—Whether a private game preserve is a business or a pleasure is the question before the Federal court jury here in an action instituted by Chester Chapin, wealthy railroad and steamship magnate, against Roscoe Irwin, former collector of internal revenue, for refund of income tax.

Chapin's preserve consists of 15,000 acres in Sullivan county and 15,000 acres in Putnam. Several years ago, Chapin included in his federal return, a loss of $4,000 on the preserve. Irwin decided the preserve was a hobby and not a business, and refused to allow the deduction. The action was begun today for recovery of the money.

NEW QUALIFICATIONS FOR DENTISTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Feb 12.—Two medical bills were introduced in the legislature today by Senator Karle, Republican of Queens. One provides that an applicant for a license to practice dentistry must have had four years high school education, instead of one year, as now required. The other would permit issuance of medical licenses to persons who are holders of degrees of bachelor of medicine from foreign universities.

Coolidge Takes Responsibility

Believes Cabinet Officers Are President's Personal Lieutenants for Whom He Is Responsible and Will Fight for Warren's Confirmation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Feb. 12.—President Coolidge today called on the administration forces of the Senate to wage a finish fight for confirmation of Charles B. Warren of Detroit as attorney general.

This was the message carried to the Senate by Senator Cummins, Republican of Iowa, after an hour's conference with the president at the White House. The president was reported to have ignored all attacks on Warren's connection with sugar interests and to have demanded the right to name his own choices for cabinet posts. He was said to be willing to assume all responsibility for Warren's fitness and to be vigorously opposed to withdrawal of the appointment.

Cummins was summoned to the White House as a result of the Senate's delay in approving Warren's appointment. He explained to the president that this delay was due to the opposition of Democratic senators and the LaFollette insurgent group.

These attacks all based on Warren's activities on behalf of sugar interests a decade ago, have tied up the nomination ever since it reached the senate last January 10.

The president, it was said, took the position that cabinet officers are the executive's personal lieutenants and that he alone is responsible for their service to the nation.

The opposition to Warren, however, has grown so rapidly that his confirmation is in doubt. Democratic senators have openly predicted that if a vote be taken now the appointment will be rejected.

There were reports that administration leaders, aware of this probable result, would evade such a blow to the president's prestige by blocking a vote before adjournment. If this be done, the president can rename Warren by a recess appointment with much more favorable chances for confirmation in the next congress.

Ancient English Guild

In the isle of Purbeck, from which came the stone for Westminster abbey and many other ancient structures, the quarries belong to an old and exclusive guild. A candidate for admission to it must be the son of a freeman, though a freeman's wife is made a freewoman on paying one shilling—the "marriage shilling." In the event of his death she can carry on his business.—London Tit-Bits.

Day of Small Towns Coming in America?

That the modern city is doomed is the rather startling statement of Henry Ford. According to Drew Pearson, writing in Automotive Industries, Mr. Ford declares that in the America of the future there will be no mammoth collections of skyscrapers and teeming tenements in which millions of people are cooped within a few square miles of territory. Instead, the country will be traversed by chains of small towns clustering around individual factories and inhabited by people who will divide their time between factory and farm. The picture of the America of tomorrow which Henry Ford paints, says Mr. Pearson, is a particularly rosy one. In his opinion, the passing of the big city will mean less crime, less poverty, less wealth, less unrest and less of that fierce, nervous strain under which myriads of our city dwellers live today.

Something like this, agrees the Philadelphia Record, will have to be brought about in order to correct the growing monstrosity of our big cities. There are some four hundred of these in the world whose populations exceed one hundred thousand, says the Washington Post. In Mr. Ford's opinion:

"The overhead expense of living in such places is becoming unbearable. The cost of maintaining interest on debts, of keeping up water supply, sewerage and sanitary systems, the cost of traffic control and of policing great masses of people is so great as to offset the benefits of the city. The cities are getting topheavy and are about doomed.

"Industry in the future is going to be organized on a big scale—somewhat along the lines of the vertical trust. Competition, however, will force big industry to move its various parts to the country, where labor is steady and overhead costs low.

"At the same time, it is nonsense to say that because the cities are overcrowded everybody ought to move to the farm. There must be a balance between the two. The farm has its dull season, when the farmer can come into the factory, and the factory has its dull season when the workmen can get out on the land to help produce food."—From the Literary Digest.

The Glove in History

The use of gloves dates back to remote times. Xenophon sneered at the Persians for wearing gloves to keep their hands warm. The Greeks and Romans also scorned the use of gloves. The glove appears to have become a well-known article of dress in England about the Fourteenth century. The materials used for making leather gloves are principally the skin of deer, sheep and lambs, goats and kids, the latter being the most important, though far more kid gloves are made of sheep than of kid leather.

Historical Record of Use of "Poison Rings"

Throughout history the "ring of death" has played a dramatic part. At first it was designed as a means of quick and easy escape from a terrible fate, the horrors of the torture chamber or the disgrace of slavery to a hated enemy. Hannibal, the Carthaginian general, turned to the poison contained in his ring when he was on the point of being given up to his enemies. The Athenian orator, Demosthenes, is said to have carried a similar ring, relates the Mentor Magazine.

Time brought about the invention of a new kind of ring of death, the poison ring, designed for the purpose of premeditated murder. The poison rings of the Borgias are famous in history. Some of them still exist, one bearing the date 1503 and the motto of Cesare Borgia. Beneath the bezel of this ring there is a sliding pan and when this is displaced there appears a small space where the poison was kept. Such rings simply afforded a ready supply of poison at need, but another type constituted a death-dealing weapon. The bezel was wrought in the shape of a lion, the lion's claws of the animal admitted the passage of a subtle poison through them, and it is conjectured that the death wound could have been inflicted by turning the bezel of the ring inward, so that a hearty grasp would produce a slight puncture in the victim's hand.

Exhibition of Fakes to Help Out Critics

An exhibit of counterfeits, imitations and copies of works of art was held in London a short time ago. The object of the exhibition, which included pictures, drawings, furniture, carpets, metal work, ceramics and sculpture, was to help students, collectors and critics in the study of problems of quality and originality as also of period and school. In many cases this object was furthered by comparison of the copy with the original, or the imitation with an authenticated example of the style and period aimed at; and works produced for innocent purposes of record, reproduction, duplication and repetition and examples of restoration and repair, as well as works intended to deceive, are included.

At any rate, as regards the pictures, one comforting conclusion is that it is, on the whole, easier for the forger to imitate those qualities which appeal to the collector as collector—such as "the tone of time" and cracks in the surface—than the basic qualities of a great work of art, such as drawing and design.

Island of Legend

The Island of the Seven Cities was an imaginary island, abounding with gold, and adorned with superb houses and temples, whose lofty towers were visible at a great distance. According to a legend that prevailed at the time of Columbus, this island was settled by seven bishops who, having fled with a great number of people from Spain and Portugal, when those countries were conquered by the Moors, took to the ocean, and finally landed on an unknown island. After their arrival, the bishops burned the ships to prevent the return of their followers, and founded seven cities. It is said that those navigators who visited the island in after years were never permitted to return.—Kansas City Star.

AUTOISTS URGED TO PLAY SAFETY

Development of Personal as Well as Group Responsibility Is Needed.

Complicated legislation, which is so involved that it often defeats its own ends, is seen as an obstacle to traffic and highway safety by Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile association. He issued a statement requesting all Three A affiliated motor clubs throughout the country to urge upon all car owners the vital necessity of developing a sense of personal as well as group responsibility in driving cars and in safeguarding human life and property.

Legislation Fails.

Legislation, he says, has failed to keep our streets and highways safe, and we must look to the motorist's mind and reason for safety.

According to a comprehensive survey of the automobile and pedestrian accident situation throughout the country, as made by the A. A. A. in pursuance of its drive for safer motoring, there is no direct relation between the amount of severity of legislation and safety, and frequently no relation between law enforcement and safety.

"This reveals the outstanding weakness of automobile legislation and enforcement," President Henry explains. "The average driver feels that the law is something that technically imposes upon him a certain restriction which he can very easily avoid if he is careful not to be caught. There appears to be no clear-cut sense of obligation, thus revealing an urgent need for a switch to concentration upon a moral obligation.

Effective Enforcement Needed.

"Good motor laws and effective enforcement are absolutely essential in order that those who refuse to appreciate their responsibilities can be punished accordingly, but legislation alone will not do for our present complicated system of motoring. Legislation without an appropriate sense of personal and group responsibility is nothing more than what we choose to call carelessness.

"It is a significant fact that many laws which are not on the statutes are being obeyed more willingly than many which are described by overenthusiastic safety advocates as having 'teeth' in them. These are the laws of common sense and decency, readily understandable to the average driver and, therefore, a true basis of safety.

"The A. A. A. warns all its affiliated clubs against concentrating too much time upon enactment of additional legislation, but to conduct campaigns immediately to educate the driver to the importance of his responsibility to himself as well as to those he is morally obliged to protect.

"We are going to turn selfishness inside out and apply its enormous force into productive channels. If every driver will be selfish enough to give due concern to his own welfare as one good worry about the safety of motoring as a whole.

"With the nation's drivers looking out for themselves first there can be no insanity and road hoggishness to mar motoring.

"We want the automobile driver to feel that any foolhardy or reckless act is a violation of his own rights, his own judgment, his own welfare. As matters now stand with each state issuing a portfolio of legislation, the motorist has a notion that when he is not violating some specific law or the imposition of which he had no part."

Don't Forget

The following "don't forgets" are suggested to the motorist for winter driving:

Anti-freeze solution, preferably half water and half denatured alcohol, with a small amount of glycerin to prevent alcohol evaporation.

Keep this anti-freeze solution constant by adding more alcohol than water.

Have carburetor cleaned and adjusted for winter driving.

Blow out heating chamber and passages frequently to eliminate carbon.

Clean out carbon and grind valves.

Blow out carburetor and gasoline lines to eliminate water and sediment.

Drain and flush out transmission and rear axle and refill with lubricant suitable to temperature range of your locality.

Keep storage battery fully charged.

Add distilled water to battery twice a month.

Change oil every 500 miles of driving.

Heating Device Prevents Radiator From Freezing

When a garage is wired for electricity, it is a simple matter to wrap a heating pad around the lower hose connection, running from the water jacket of the engine to the bottom of the radiator, as in the illustration. Two leather straps hold the pad in place and it may be covered with sheet asbestos, if desired.

The cord is shortened so that one-half of the plug is only a few inches from the pad. The other half of the plug is connected by means of a long cord with a lamp socket. When you drive in on cold nights, plug in the three-way switch on high, low or medium, according to the weather, and your car can be left in safety, as the pad is provided with an automatic thermostat, which prevents overheating.—F. S. Root, in Popular Science Monthly.

Repairing Poor Threads Often Is Arduous Task

To recut badly damaged threads, take a nut of the proper size and saw a slot in one side. Spread the slot slightly with a screwdriver or metal wedge and turn the nut over the damaged threads until it reaches the good threads. Remove the wedge and draw together with a wrench so as to tighten the nut on the threads, then turn it back over the damaged part. The split nut will always follow the old thread, but it may be necessary to repeat the operation several times to recut the thread on the damaged section.—Automobile Digest.

Radiator Hose

A kink or twist in the hose may possibly result in poor circulation of the water. This should be avoided. The inside fibers of the hose also tend to become loose and thus clog the system. In making replacements, good steam hose should be used, preferably of three or four-ply thickness.

Harsh Punishments

Sometimes in the ancient days of Milan a fine was imposed for larceny, at other times the foot of the criminal was amputated. In cases of forgery the right hand was cut off, and a pole, bored with two holes, was the fate meted out to [illegible]

'Evidence in Mitigation' Reduces Penalty for Lively Episode at Party.

Chicago.—"Evidence in mitigation" reduced the penalty meted out to Mrs. Francis Butterfield by Judge John A. Bugee of the Sheffield avenue police court for shooting up a party where her husband was a guest, to a mere $25 fine and a day in the house of correction.

"No, your honor," testified her husband, in contradiction of his previous statement that Mrs. Butterfield had taken exception to the number of times he had fox-trotted with Caroline Rehmberg.

"No, your honor, it wasn't anything like that. Caroline's a dancing teacher and my wife wouldn't take a shot at me just for picking up a few new steps. You see, your honor, it was like this. There was a party—"

The party, according to the police who broke it up, occurred so late Saturday as to be early Sunday, in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mulder, on the floor below the Butterfield menage.

Shot Through the Door.

"Mrs. Butterfield didn't shoot up the place very badly," Mrs. Mulder testified, with the tact of the perfect hostess. "All she did to me was to chase me into the kitchen and beat me up."

Punched His Nose.

"And all she did to me," Mrs. Butterfield's host concurred, "was to punch my nose."

"She only threw a bridge lamp at me," said Frank Keller, one of the guests.

"She hit me with the shade," added Clarence Garland, another guest.

It was at this point, testimony revealed, that Mrs. Butterfield, feeling the inadequacy of her weapons, went home for her automatic.

She returned to the portal of the Mulder apartment, only to have it inhospitably slammed in her face by Miss Rehmberg. It was necessary, Mrs. Butterfield explained to the court, to shoot through the door to let those within know that she wished to enter. Police, who arrived presently, claim that Mrs. Butterfield was extravagant in firing a total of 13 shots.

Total casualties from the fray being shown to be only Mrs. Butterfield's brooch and housekey, Mr. Butterfield's diamond ring (slightly injured) and the Mulder bridge lamp (a complete wreck), the court was lenient. All but Mrs. Butterfield were discharged.

Wits Save Life

Andover, Mass.—Ellsworth G. Reed cheated death by his presence of mind when his clothing became caught in whirling shafting in the mill where he is employed.

Reed, instead of struggling to disengage himself and risking certain death by being flung against the ceiling, wrapped his arms around the shaft, flattening himself against it. He was dropped to the floor only slightly injured when his clothing, with the exception of the neckband of his shirt and his shoes, had been torn from him.

BURY DOG IN SAME GRAVE AS MASTER

Animal Drops Dead Near Vacant Chair of Owner.

Lexington, Ky.—Have animals a sense of personal bereavement? An instance in proof of this comes from Calhoun, Ky., where there were two burials in one grave, a master and his faithful dog, which died of grief, it is believed, when it discovered its master was dead.

The master was Louis Rowan, fifty-six years old. For some time Rowan's only companion was his dog, which followed him everywhere he went and slept on the floor, near his bed, at night. A few days ago Rowan died. His last request was that the undertaker permit the dog to accompany his remains to the cemetery. This request was granted and after the burial of Rowan, the undertaker took the dog back to the Rowan home. On entering the house the dog began to whine mournfully, and, after making three rounds of the house as if to take a last farewell of his accustomed haunts, the dog halted by his master's vacant chair beside the fireplace, suddenly reeled and fell dead. Members of the household made a tiny coffin and carried it to the cemetery, where the faithful dog was interred in the same grave with his master.

"Jim" Marshall, Former "Dead Shot," Is Dead

Denver, Colo.—"Three-fingered Jim" Marshall, who won his title by quick trigger work in the gold camps in the stage-coach days of the West, died in the General hospital here after having served the last ten years of his checkered career as a deputy sheriff.

In the booming days of the famous Cripple creek mining camps, whose only law was that which stern-faced men carried in leather holsters, conveniently swung on cartridge belts at their hips, "Three-fingered Jim" won and lost several fortunes in gold across the green-cushioned gambling tables. In those days, when men risked sacks of gold dust on the turn of a card, Marshall was at his best. Frequently, after a successful night at gambling tables, he would go into the streets and give away a small fortune to those less fortunate than himself. Later Marshall is said practically to have controlled the gambling enterprises in El Paso, Texas, and in Del Norte, New Juarez, N. M.

Still later, when the West was dropping some of its frontier habits, Marshall bought a string of race horses and invaded the tracks of the East. He was a familiar figure for several years in Louisville and in Eastern track circles.

Wills Her Big Home as Animal Hospital

Bridgeport, Conn.—A big, old-fashioned house, set in spacious grounds in the heart of this city's most exclusive residential district, is destined to become the Dodea Animal hospital, a memorial to the two pet dogs of its late owner, Mrs. Marietta W. Crowley, by whose will ultimate disposition of the property is thus provided.

The instrument also requires that portraits of the pets Dodea and Dodo are to occupy places of honor in the hospital.

As originally drawn, the will bequeathed the property immediately upon Mrs. Crowley's death to the Animal Rescue league, which will conduct the institution, but by a codicil added October 7, about a month before Mrs. Crowley died, her companion, Mrs. Elizabeth E. Fell, is to have the use of the house during her life. Then it will revert to the league.

The house is valued at about $20,000, and comprises a fifth of Mrs. Crowley's estate. With the exception of $25,000 for the mausoleum to be built on a $5,000 lot in Mountain Grove cemetery, $1,000 to the Cleveland Animal Rescue league and three minor charitable bequests, the balance of the estate is divided among relatives.

Screw Taken From Man's Lung After 28 Years

Pittsburgh, Pa.—A one-inch brass screw, swallowed 28 years ago, was removed from the right lung of Frank Crawford by Dr. J. Homer McCready at the Francis Memorial hospital here recently. A tube equipped with a small electric light bulb was inserted through the mouth, and after the screw had been located a long forceps was used in its removal. The patient's condition is reported as being "good."

Fortune in Furs

Montreal, Que.—An old woman, dressed in shabby black, carrying two battered tin pails, shuffled into the Royal Bank of Canada recently and inquired about a safety deposit box. On being told $5 to $30, she raised her pails to the counter and produced $15,000 worth of bonds and about $6,000 in cash.

"Would it be possible to place these in a safe box," she asked timidly.

The amazed official said he thought it would be a right squeeze, whereupon the old lady sighed and walked away.

He is a life in the woods for 40 years.

Actor's Ready Wit

As a young man, Walter Prichard Eaton had the good fortune to hear the famous comedian, Peter F. Dailey, spring one of his best impromptu jokes during a burlesque performance of "The Merry Widow."

In his book, "The Actor's Heritage," he describes the scene in which Dailey is leaving a restaurant where the prices were something terrific. As he was making his exit, the comedian accidentally stepped on something and started to fall. Being an extremely heavy man, there was actual danger. The other players sprang to catch him and the audience gasped. But he righted himself and then in silence stooped down and picked up a tiny object on which he had slipped.

The play stopped. In an expectant silence, Dailey drew out a pocketbook, counted the money in it and then deposited the total sum in the head waiter's hands.

"There," he said, "is $12. I stepped on a bean."

Slattery Meets Delaney Friday

Buffalo Fighter Gained the Edge in a Previous Meeting and is Confident—Delaney Reported to be in the Pink.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 12.—Jimmy Slattery, of Buffalo, may be able, as he says he is, to slap the taste from the mouth of M. Jacques Chapeldelaine, who appears more briefly under the nom de sock of Jac Delaney, but those with more than a passing interest in the fighters' second meeting tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden seemed not so sure of it today.

Slattery's speed, his clever defense and his ability to step around gave him the edge in their previous meeting and when this match was made, those things were remembered by those who looked for Slattery to repeat, in six rounds. The immature years of the boy from Buffalo preclude a longer match.

The sharp shooters today were inclined to give more than a glance to M. Delaney. Six rounds is a short match, but it would be more than aplenty should Slattery be so indiscreet as to step in front of Delaney's right when it is on business bent. The Bridgeport gent was allotted much more space than that in his meeting with Tiger Flowers, the storm cloud from Atlanta, and used but a fraction of the time given him. It was all over, so the Tiger learned next day, shortly after the start of the second round.

Delaney also is a keen judge of distance and not so dusty as a boxer himself. He wastes few moves. He reports that he is in better shape than when they last mixed and he can outspeed Slattery.

The semi-final will come in for attention also. It brings together Warnie Smith of Chicago and Larry Estridge, the southpaw pride of the Harlem, over 12 rounds.

"Big" Munn Won Again.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 12.—Wayne "Big" Munn today continued to hold forth as the world's heavyweight wrestling champion. The glossy haired former Nebraska University star last night bounced Stanislaus Zbyszko to defeat in slightly more than 29 minutes. The first fall came in 16 minutes and 40 seconds, the second in 12 minutes and 45 seconds.

Tiry in Bicycle Race.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 12.—After a night of wild riding three teams are tied for the lead in the six day bicycle race. Belloni and Degraave, Italian-Belgian team, gained a lap during the night and today are tied with the teams of McNamara-Walthour and Koechler-Stockholm.

Peekskill Breaks Saints' Record

Peekskill H. of C. Quintet Beat St. Peter's Lyceum Squad, 28 to 13—Junior Saints Won Handily.

The St. Peter's Lyceum squad met defeat Wednesday for the first time this season on its home court at the hands of the Peekskill Knights of Columbus Five. This was the second defeat of the local Saints at the hands of the Peekskill quintet.

The game was very well played throughout, some brilliant basketball being played. In the first half A. A. U. rules were played and the last period, professional rules. The Saints were outclassed in both halves. The final score was 28 to 13.

In the first half period under the A. A. U. rules the Peekskill squad came out with a seven point margin, score 11 to 4. In the professional half the visitors increased the lead.

The local team from all angles were second. The field goals stood nine to four and the foul shots ten to five. Curley, the fast Peekskill forward, led the scorers with ten points. Gluck was second in scoring with nine points. The defensive game played by Gluck was one of the best exhibitions ever given on the local court. Murphy did the best work for the Saints, caging five points.

The game was over two hours late in starting, the busses carrying the team and supporters, meeting with difficult travel to Kingston. One of the largest crowds of the season witnessed the struggle.

Lindstrom's Pay Raised.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 12.—The contract of Freddie Lindstrom, boy star of the 1924 world series, was in the safe along with that of Grover Hartley, veteran catcher, in the Giant strong box today. Lindstrom received a substantial raise in pay.

Yankees Afraid Of Washington

"Only Club I Must Beat," Says Yankee Boss—Huggins Cannot See Cobb's Tigers Because of Infield Weakness.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 12.—The Washington Senators may be a one-year ball club, as some critics are pleased to see it, but you can't prove the allegation by our Mr. Huggins. The worthy Miller came to town the other day and became so exercised over the situation that he broke the habit of a lifetime. Stepping completely out of character, he became a wild, reckless gambler and bet two of the news scavengers that the Senators would finish higher than the Detroit Tigers in the 1925 American League race. The Yankees, of course, remain Mr. Huggins' favorite ball club.

"The Senators look like a good bet to hustle right through the campaign," quoth he. "I really think they will give us more trouble than Detroit. Of course, I am figuring Walter Johnson to be with the Senators again.

"He still has another year or so of championship pitching in his system and I don't see how the Senators could afford to let him go at this stage of the proceedings. They have a rather old ball club that is likely to begin disintegrating at any time and a man like Johnson is almost indispensable.

"The Senators will be a hustling ball club because they haven't yet got used to the idea of being champions and will be crazy to repeat. Their success in 1924 will make them play with added confidence; in fact, I regard Washington as the club the Yankees will have to beat."

Infield weakness, he opined, would keep the Tigers out of the pennant.

"They lack just a little of being a championship ball club, as I see it," Huggins declared. "I think that little will be plenty. No club that I know of ever won a pennant without an acceptable second baseman and the Tigers still are looking for the man they want."

At this juncture the gentleman's attention was called to the fact that the Yankees themselves are none too secure about the inner circle.

"If Scott goes as well as he did last year there will be no trouble and we will win the pennant," was the reply. "If he slips, I will be put to the test. But I don't think he will.

"I have been asked if I intended to move Ward to shortstop in case Scottie caves. I don't think so. If the worst comes to the worst I would put Johnson or Shanks at shortstop and try to make the best of things.

"Combs will start the season in center field, but Witt will not be let out. 'Whitey' is a handy man to have around. Shocker has told me he will pitch his arm off for the Yankees and I believe him. Steve O'Neil O'Neill says he will be as good as he was in Cleveland five years ago. I hope so."

Huggins added that he was in hearty accord with the decision of Babe Ruth to go to Hot Springs for boiling out two weeks earlier than usual.

"Ruth has arrived at the age when the fat piles up on him and he knows that he needs more work to keep it down," he said.

"He is one of the few ball players you can let alone in the matter of conditioning."

Yonkers at Armory Tonigh

Tonight at the local armory over the Kingston team of the Metropolitan League will be back to resume its fight for second half honors. The winners of the first half race will be opposed this evening by the Yonkers outfit.

The Morgenweckers should have up a win over the Fennel aggregation if past performances can be considered. Kingston is in the running for the honors in this final half and tonight's victory will help matters greatly.

A large holiday crowd is expected to witness the contest and enjoy the dancing which follows.

Pittsburgh Won Polo Match.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—Princeton's polo trio lost last night to the Pittsburgh Polo and Riding Club at the Hunt Armory by a score of 9 to 8. The game was a riding duel between Clothier, Princeton's captain, and McChesney of Pittsburgh.

Wiltwycks Won Game.

The Wiltwyck Five defeated the Yankee Five in a very fast game, score 50 to 40. Dugan and Miller did the best work for the Wiltwycks. Hotaling did the best work for the Yankees. The Wiltwycks are looking for games. Call 2652-J.
